GATES OPEN IN WELCOME TO THE WORLD

JAMESTOWN SHOW NOW UNDER WAY

President Roosevelt Presses Gold Button to Inaugurate Vast Ter-Centennial World's Fair

NAVIES OF NATIONS IN MIGHTY REVIEW

Norfolk, Va., April 26.—The Jamestown tercentennial exposition—a land and water display such as never was attempted in this country or on foreign shores, was opened today with that pomp and ceremony which always attends an event where the president of the United States is a central figure and diplomatic representatives of foreign nations, governors of states and like dignitaries are honored guests and participants.

President Reviews Ironclads.

Incident to the opening President Roosevelt reviewed from the deck of the Mayflower, the war vessels anchored in Hampton Roads. He reached Discovery landing, having been transferred in a naval launch from his yacht, shortly before noon and amid applause from the thousands gathered to voice their welcome, he was received by the exposition management. Then followed the program for opening to the public the enterprise commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the first English settlement in America, which program included an address by Harry St. George Tucker, president of the exposition, and one by President Roosevelt; singing by the exposition chorus of 700 trained voices, the pressing of the gold button by President Roosevelt, which marked the formal opening, and a review by the president of the assembled military forces.

Began at Sunrise.

At sunrise the ceremonies were begun by the United States artillery firing a salute of 300 guns to usher in the day. This was a signal for the trend of humanity to railroad trains, street cars and boat lines, which from that moment poured people into the grounds.

A distinguished gathering received the president and his party at Discovery landing. It included President Tucker and all of the general officers of the exposition, Rear Admiral P. F. Harrington, in charge of the naval program, and Major General Fred D. Grant, who arranged the military attractions. After an exchange of greetings during which the bands played patriotic selections, the party proceeded in carriages to the grand stand. The cheering crowd pressed the outriders and surged after the line of carriages, which took the most direct route around the main auditorium building to the scene of the inaugural. The procession was a triumphal one for the president, but it was equalled later by the welcome given him as he entered the reviewing stand.

Crowd Gives Noisy Welcome.

Bowing to the right and to the left his acknowledgments of the great public acclaim spurred the crowd to renewed efforts. The gathering in front of the grand stand had started as soon as the choice vantage points had become occupied at the water front and when the ceremonies opened the audience extended over the parade ground far beyond the reach of the speakers' voices.

When President Roosevelt stepped ashore from the Mayflower's launch he received his first formal welcome from H. St. George Tucker, president of the exposition. "Old Virginia salutes you, sir," exclaimed Mr. Tucker, as he warmly grasped the president's hand. "I am very glad indeed to be here," responded the president.

The formal program opened with an overture by the bands—"Jamestown Dixie," which was composed especially for the occasion—followed by a selection by the exposition chorus and prayer by the Right Rev. Alfred Magill Randolph, bishop of the diocese of southern Virginia.

After the chorus had sung the official opening hymn—a beautiful and appropriate work by Wilberforce G. Owst—President Tucker faced the multitude. A spontaneous outburst of cheering greeted him as a testimonial of approval by the people to the gigantic work that had been done in celebration of one of the most important events in the history of the nation, as well as of Virginia. Mr. Tucker's address was of a historical and chronological character and at its conclusion he introduced President Roosevelt.

Noise Delayed Roosevelt.

When the president of the exposition concluded, it was some minutes before President Roosevelt could proceed with his address. The people again and again gave vent to their enthusiasm. As he pressed the gold button which formally opened the exposition it was the signal for the unfurling of a thousand or more flags on the various buildings. At the same time a signal was given to the United States and foreign warships and to the garrison at Fort Monroe and all fired a salute to the union. When the echoes of the last gun died away, all of the bands on the exposition grounds played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the troops saluted the national anthem by presenting arms and all persons present bared heads.

After this impressive ceremony the president of the United States, his cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, committees from both branches of congress, governors of states and official guests of the exposition were served luncheon in the auditorium annex. During the lunch the parade grounds were cleared and the great crowd sought places around the walks to witness the military pageant. On the reviewing stand besides the president were members of his cabinet and other official visitors as well as several hundred especially invited guests.

Not Large But Splendid.

While the military feature was not large it was of a splendid character. It was commanded by Major General Fred D. Grant as grand marshal, who was attended by his entire staff. In addition he had about a score of honorary aides, chosen largely from union and confederate societies and historical associations. In the parade in the order named, there were detachments of marines and seamen from foreign warships, the Twenty-third regiment of United States infantry, a batallion of United States coast artillery, six battleships of the naval brigade from the United States Atlantic fleet, the Third battery of United States field artillery, the second squadron of the United States Twelfth cavalry, the Seventy-first regiment of Virginia volunteers, and batteries C and D, First battalion of artillery, Virginia volunteers.

All in Full Dress.

Full dress uniform was worn. The foot organizations were formed in double rank and passed in review in company front, while the cavalry and artillery passed in columns of platoons. No honors were paid along the line of march except the salute to the president. After the review the United States and foreign naval detachments returned to their vessels, and the army detachments went to camp Captain John Smith, which is the name given in an order by General Grant to the post at the exposition grounds.

Reception to President.

A reception was tendered the president in the rotunda of the auditorium this afternoon by the officers and directors of the exposition. All of the distinguished guests who occupied positions in the grand stand were invited. It is not planned that the president shall visit any of the exhibition buildings as he intends to pay a visit to the exposition on Georgia day in June. Immediately after the reception the president will proceed to Norfolk on either the Mayflower or the Sylph. In the evening he will be the guest of Mr. Tucker and Barton Myers of the exposition management at a dinner given at Mr. Myers' home.

Pressed a Gold Button.

The pressing of the proverbial gold button invariably used in connection with the opening of an exposition, was also an important function in itself as had been expected. On account of the unreadiness of the buildings and the grounds, there was little machinery to set in motion and many of the buildings had not been supplied with flags to be unfurled. The coldest and most backward spring in the annals of Virginia, marked by severe rainstorms in the past month is responsible for the opening ceremonies being marred by incompleted structures and uninstalled machinery. Although the exposition management displayed marked energy in meeting a situation that for several weeks has been overwhelming, they were powerless to bring anything like order from the chaotic condition. Contractors were unable to complete many of the buildings in time for the installation of exhibits and as for the removal of the debris with which the grounds are strewn and the scaffolding that encloses a large part of the buildings, the effect must be likened unto ants trying to move a mountain. Freight congestion on the railway and steamship lines vexatiously delayed the arrival of shipments and it was utterly impossible to unload, unpack and install the thousands of consignments of exhibits. Labor famine contributed largely to these misfortunes.

Will Complete Show May 15.

May 15 has been fixed as the day when the directors of the exposition hope to be able to open all features of the show. Some of the exposition officials advised several weeks ago that the inaugural date be postponed to May 13, the three hundredth anniversary of the settlement of Jamestown instead of having it today, the tercentennial of the landing of the English at Cape Henry, but the contracts with concessionaires prohibited the change. It is agreed in these contracts that the exposition should be open from April 26 until November 30.

The United States government building, forming undoubtedly one of the most interesting features of the exposition, is all ready and will of course be opened today. The states exhibit palace is also complete in every detail of construction and installation.

BROKER IS MAKING A CLEAN BREAST OF STEALINGS

Jerome's Office Getting a Full Story of Theft of Securities.

New York, April 26.—A complete exposure of the plan by which several hundred thousand dollar's worth of bonds were stolen from the Trust Company of America, may be in the hands of the district attorney before night. Both W. O. Douglas, the assistant loan clerk for the Trust company, who was arrested on a charge of stealing the bonds, and O. M. Dennett, a broker who was taken into custody in connection with the case, were examined at length by the district attorney today.

How much, if anything, the officials succeeded in getting out of Douglas is not known, but it was said that Dennett had consented to make a clean breast of the whole affair. His statement was said to be entirely voluntary.

Dennett's story was a long one and after its narration had continued for hours there was an intermission for luncheon. Mr. Jerome announced that absolutely nothing will be given out in reference to the statement which Dennett is making. The matter, he said, is in such shape that no one in his office can talk, and if there happens to be a leak some one will get in trouble, he said.

He was asked if he anticipated that another arrest would come as a result of Dennett's statement, and he answered "no."

Earlier in the day there had been a conference in the district attorney's office between a representative of the district attorney, Oakleigh Thorne, president of the Trust Company of America and counsel representing Dennett and Douglas.

Miss Spencer will recover from her injuries.

Intense excitement, prevails in Alton and a posse of citizens is still making search for the assailant.

MIGHTY DISPLAY OF BIG WARSHIPS AT JAMESTOWN

Assembled Fleets of the Nations Reviewed by the President.

Norfolk, Va., April 26.—The deep-throated guns of five great nations today voiced a salute in unison to the American flag and to the president of the United States. The reverberating of the cannon sped thundering and echoing over the waters of far famed Hampton Roards, where nearly half a century ago the Monitor and Merrimac met in the memorable conflict which brought into being the armored craft of the war. From the "little Yankee cheese box set upon a raft" and the rectangular mass of iron which carried the confederate flag in 1862 to the modern fighting machines typified by the flower of the American navy, gathered in holiday assemblage today, is a far cry. Yet many of those who stood on the shores and witnessed the naval pageant in the roadstead vividly recalled the historic time when the wind rippled waters which formed the setting of this greatest international rendezvous of war vessels of recent years, were splashing with the shot and shell of the first great battle of steel-clad ships.

Reviewed by the President.

President Roosevelt from the bridge of the trim little yacht cruiser, Mayflower, whose decks were the meeting place of the peace plenipotentiaries of Russia and Japan less than two years ago, reviewed the great assemblage of flag draped fighters gathered from the corners of the world to make a notable opening day of the Jamestown tercentennial exposition, commemorating the three hundredth anniversary of the first English settlement in America.

There were thirty-eight American ships in today's review. The foreign ships numbered twelve typical modern fighting craft and furnished a picturesque and striking contrast as between the foreign built cruiser and the products of American ship and navy yards.

All of the vessels of the combined fleets were "dressed" in the fluttering flags of the nations and the brilliant hued pennants and bits of bunting which formed the international signal code. During the salutes to the president the white puffs of powder smoke floated away like tiny flecks of summer clouds amid the fluttering flags of the decorated ships, the effect being one of unexpected beauty.

Mayflower Reaches End of Column.

The trim Mayflower, bearing the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, Secretary Loeb and a few invited guests, approaching from the eastward, arrived at the head of the column of

NEW FACTORY COMING TO FORT WAYNE AT ONCE

Wallace-Lindsmith Hoist Company to Open Big Branch Here.

Negotiations have just been completed under which Fort Wayne will get a promising addition to its manufacturing institutions. The Wallace-Lindsmith Hoist company, of Los Angeles, Cal., will at once locate a branch factory in this city, occupying the plant erected for the Clark Showcase and Fixture company, in the Commercial addition.

The proposition has been under consideration for some time by the Commercial club and the Commercial Improvement company, and S. T. Wallace, president of the company, has been in the city for the past two weeks looking over the situation. Today he announced an acceptance of the terms, and the negotiations were closed up by Secretary Hanna, of the Commercial club, and by the officers of the Commercial Improvement company.

Make Hoisting Machinery.

The Wallace-Lindsmith Hoist company is a big concern at Los Angeles and it also has a depot at San Francisco, but this is the first move toward going after eastern business. The company manufactures electric, steam and gasoline hoisting machinery used by contractors and in mining operations. Mr. Wallace explained that at the beginning the Fort Wayne branch cannot give employment to a large number of men, but there is every promise that the concern will grow into one of the important industrial concerns in the city.

President Wallace said that some of the machinery for the Fort Wayne branch had already been purchased and it would arrive in the city next week. The factory will be gotten into operation as quickly as possible—within a few weeks at farthest.

LOEB HAS NOTHING TO SAY.

Secretary to President Declines to Discuss Rumored Change.

Jamestown, Va., April 26.—William Loeb, jr., secretary to the president, declined today to discuss in any way the report sent out from Washington yesterday to the effect that he had been selected to head the Washington Railway and Electric company, after the next meeting of the directors of that organization. Mr. Loeb was questioned about the report as soon as he landed at the Jamestown exposition from the Mayflower with President Roosevelt.

"I will have to see that story," said Mr. Loeb, "before I can discuss it."

Pressed for a more definite answer Mr. Loeb said he had nothing further to say.

STARTLING STORY OF PLOT TO SLAY

President of Building Trades Council Asserts a Conspiracy to Carry Him Off and Kill Him

INTESTINAL LABOR WAR AT BOTTOM OF IT

San Francisco, April 26.—A sensational story was sprung in labor circles last night of an alleged conspiracy to kidnap and murder P. H. McCarthy, president of the Building Trades council, and one of the most prominent labor leader of this city.

The alleged plot is laid bare in the remarkable affidavit and confession made by H. Shockley. Shockley implicated John Young, Jack Morris, Gus Burt, Gus Smith and J. Van Frank. McCarthy disclosed the alleged scheme at a meeting of the Building Trades council and gave to the press what purported to be the confession of Shockley which had been sworn to before a notary public. While the conspiracy is alleged to have emanated from the Electrical Workers union No. 6, which has been at war with the Building Trades council and was recently expelled by that body, McCarthy declared that the citizens' alliance was behind the plot and furnished the funds with which the six men, according to Shockley, were to go to Europe after carrying out the plan.

The Motive Ascribed.

The motive of the alleged plot, McCarthy finds in the enmity that the members of Electrical Workers union No. 6 have for him because of the part he took as president of the Building Trades council in the expulsion of the union from the council. The union had called a strike of its members on the Fairmont hotel some weeks ago without authorization of the Building Trades council. McCarthy ordered the union back to work under threat of expulsion. Refusing to return to work the union was expelled and its members regarded by the council and its affiliated unions as non-union men with whom they would not work. In place of the expelled union, a new union of electrical workers was organized by the Building Trades council. Vice President Sullivan, of the expelled union, in an interview last night, declared that when traced back to its source, it would be found that the alleged plot had been hatched by McCarthy himself.

HE LAY DOWN TO DIE IN AN INDIANAPOLIS CHURCHYARD

Bryan, Ohio, Man Found Breathing His Last—Had Taken Carbolic Acid.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 26.—P. H. Brown, of Byron, Ohio, was found dying of carbolic acid poisoning in St. Mary's church yard in East Maryland street, early this morning and died while he was being taken to the city hospital in the city dispensary ambulance.

The man left a note to relatives, asking their forgiveness and saying that he had no reason to live longer. It is thought that Brown was a stranger in Indianapolis and that he had been in the city only a short time. There were no other papers in his pockets, aside from the note, which was taken charge of by the police.

A laborer, who passed the church on his way to work about 5 o'clock this morning, saw the man lying on the ground and notified the police. Bicycle officers were sent to investigate and found Brown gasping for breath and unconscious. The officers called the city dispensary ambulance, which made a hurried run to the hospital. Brown died before it reached the institution.

FOUNDERS DAY AT CORNELL.

Birthday of Ezra Cornell Celebrated at Ithaca.

Ithaca, N. Y., April 26.—Cornell university celebrated today the centennial of the birth of its founder, Ezra Cornell. The ceremonies were held in the armory. President J. G. Schurman presided. Among those present were members of the founder's family, the trustees of the university and the professors, instructors and part of the senior class. County Judge Charles H. Blood, of the class of '88, read the address of Andrew Carnegie on behalf of the trustees.

ENGINEER WAS KILLED.

Salisbury, Md., April 26.—Engineer John Phillips, of Delmar, Del., was killed in a head-on collision between a south-bound local passenger train and a north-bound freight on the New York, Philadelphia and Norfolk railroad, at Eden, Md., today. No passengers were injured. The accident is said to have been caused by Engineer Phillips disregarding orders to take a siding at Eden.

The Jamestown exposition "flyer" passed through Eden about an hour before the wreck occurred.

RESCUED FROM SCOW ADRIFT.

Sandusky, O., April 26.—The Marblehead life-saving crew early today rescue dthree men adrift on a scow which became separated from the tug Pankrantz yesterday afternoon during a heavy storm. The men spent a wild night on Lake Erie and suffered intensely from the cold. The scow finally drifted ashore and subsequently the three men were picked up by the life-saving crew.

Mrs. C. D. Bourie and Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Fogel will go to Swan, Noble county, tomorrow morning to attend the funeral of Miss Fannie Moore, whose death occurred yesterday. Miss Moore was 22 years of age and was the daughter of J. Howard Moore, a well known farmer.

BANK HOLDS MONEY OF SURETY TO APPLY ON NOTE

Administrator Questions the Proceeding—News of the Courts.

Joseph A. Roselle, as administrator of the estate of Frank E. Riblett, is trying to collect from the First National bank, of this city, $387, which the deceased had on deposit there at the time of his death and the bank is endeavoring to retain the money on the ground that he was surety on a note of $450 and that his deposit should be applied to the liquidation of the suretyship.

There are two sureties on the note and the administrator was willing to compromise on the payment of half, but the case was taken into court and Judge O'Rourke had it under consideration most of the day. There are two decisions on the point in Indiana, one holding that the bank can retain money and the other that it cannot. The question involves a number of fine legal points and the testimony had not all been submitted this afternoon.

Court Notes.

In the suit of John M. Connelly against Charles M. Zimmerman in the superior court yesterday a compromise verdict of $40 was rendered by the jury.

Charles McCall, by his next friend, Philip Weber, has brought suit for $2,000 against the Western Gas Construction company, claiming the money for personal injuries.

The will of Margaret Dickson was probated and under its provisions all her money goes to Mary E. Dickson, her daughter, who is appointed administratrix.

SPECIAL AGENT TELLS PRETTY ROMANCE OF BRIDGE FIRE

Meanwhile Man Who Shot at Officer Near Temple is Held in Jail.

Evansville, Ind., April 26.—Special Agent Peck, of the Southern railroad, in a statement to the Associated Press this morning denies any attempt was made to wreck the Southern trains near Temple, Ind.

He says a pile of waste caught fire on the right of way and after being extinguished, was fanned into flames again by passing trains.

The man arrested by a section foreman in company with the man who shot the marshal, refuses to talk. He was well dressed and his clothes were marked with the stamp of Cairo, Ill., merchants. He carried a new Colts revolver and had sixty-nine rounds of ammunition on his person.

It is now believed that the two men were planning a desperate hold-up of one of the passenger trains on the Southern railway.

frain from crowding. He called attention to the fact that there were women and children in front and said:

"If there is one thing that marks a body of Americans, and especially a body of Virginians, it is that they take good care of women and children." This had the effect of stopping the danger for a time, but it was not long before the people's enthusiasm again swept away all semblance of order and General Grant sent a squad of cavalry out in the throng.

The President Speaks.

The president spoke as follows:

At the outset I wish to say a word of special greeting to the representatives of the foreign governments here present. They have come to assist us in celebrating what was in very truth the birthday of this nation, for it was here that the colonists first settled, whose incoming, whose growth from their own loins and by the addition of newcomers from abroad, was to make the people which one hundred and sixty-nine years later assumed the solemn responsibilities and weighty duties of complete independence.

In welcoming all of you I must say a special word, first to the representative of the people of Great Britain and Ireland. The fact that so many of our people, of whom as it happens I myself am one, have but a very small portion of English blood in our veins, in no way alters the other fact that this nation was founded by Englishmen, by the Cavalier and the Puritan. Their tongue, law, literature, the fund of their common thought, made an inheritconstantly toward a higher civilization, a higher humanity, may advance hand in hand, united only in a generous rivalry to see which can best do its allotted work in the world. I believe that there is a rising tide in human thought which tends for righteous international peace; a tide which it behooves us to guide through rational channels to sane conclusions; and all of us here present can well afford to take to heart St. Paul's counsel: "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men."

We have met today to celebrate the opening of the exposition which itself commemorates the first permanent settlement of men of our stock in Virginia, the

COL. JOHN R. EAST DEAD.

Noted Democratic Politician of Monroe County No More.

Bloomington, Ind., April 26.—Colonel John R. East, well known as a soldier and democratic politician, died today after a long illness, aged sixty-three years.

Colonel East was a native of Monroe county and he came from a family of democrats. He became a politician early in his career as a lawyer and was soon the recognized leader of the democratic party in the county.

Once he canvassed the state, in opposition to the party platform, when the issue was temperance, and at another time he established a newspaper, known as The Blade, in opposition to an element of the party in this county. He was a member of the legislature from the counties of Monroe and Brown for one term and for years no democratic convention in this district was regarded as complete without his presence. He served two terms as county clerk. Colonel East also was a soldier in the civil war and served with gallantry. A few years ago he wrote a book that attracted attention.

TALKED TO TAX BOARD.

Sol A. Wood Appears for Lake James Traction Line.

Attorney Sol A. Wood returned today from Indianapolis, where he had appeared before the board of state tax commissioners in behalf of the Angola-Lake James trolley line. Mr. Wood stated that the company was willing to continue payment of taxes upon the basis of the assessment of last year, but he objected to any advance in the figures. Incidentally Mr. Wood indulged in a little eloquence upon the beauties of Lake James as a summer resort.

M. L. Swinehart, of Lagrange, was also before the board in behalf of the St. Joseph Valley traction line.

If you see it in a Patterson-Fletcher advertisement you may know it is so.

IRELAND SOON TO HAVE COUNCIL OF OWN TO RULE HOME

Bill is Partly Agreed Upon After Many Stormy Sessions.

London, April 26.—An Irish council, partly elective and partly nominative, which shall administer the domestic affairs of Ireland exclusive of the army and navy and without legislative powers, forms the principal feature of the Irish bill which will be introduced in the house of commons May 7.

Discussions are still going on between the government and John Redmond, chairman of the Irish parliamentary party in the house of commons, respecting the bill. That there are wide differences of opinion between the government officials and the Irish nationalists relative to the terms of the measure is not denied, but it has been agreed that the bill shall be introduced on the date determined upon by Secretary for Ireland Birrill, and what the nationalists are unable to get from the government they will endeavor to obtain by amendments which will be proposed during the debate upon the bill.

Many Stormy Sessions.

Some of the members of the cabinet who favor home rule were willing to concede many of the demands of the Irish party, but the majority favored a measure far short of what Mr. Redmond and his followers asked. There have been many conferences on the subject, some of which were stormy, and for a time it was feared that the introduction of the bill would have to be postponed, but the negotiations have now reached a stage at which it is possible to present the measure to the house.

While the negotiations were going on those participating in them were reticent as to the provisions of the bill and the result reached is far from what the nationalists desire.

Plan Home Rule Demonstration.

In the discussions Mr. Redmond strove for a greater measure of home rule and will carry the fight into the house of commons, without, however, declining to accept what is offered as a sop to the nationalists, who have abstained from participation in all the entertainments to the colonial premiers, even that given by the members of the house of commons, and are arranging a dinner for the premiers on May 6, the eve of the introduction of the Irish bill. This will be made the occasion for a great home rule demonstration, all the premiers being pronounced advocates of the self-government of Ireland.

INSURANCE MAN IS GUILTY.

Former President Brewer, of Washington Life, Made False Statement.

New York, April 26.—William A. Brewer, former president of the Washington Life Insurance company, who is under two indictments on charges of perjury and one of making a false statement concerning his company's affairs to the state insurance department, appeared in the supreme court today and tentatively offered a plea of guilty of the latter charge. It was understood that the plea of guilty was offered with the idea that only a fine would be imposed. Assistant District Attorney Nott said he had no objection to a plea of guilty being accepted, but that he would oppose a fine as the penalty. He declared that a prison sentence was deserved and should be imposed. The tentative plea was withdrawn when the case was put over until Tuesday.

BOY SAYS HE WAS ROBBED.

Police Investigate, But Find No Trace of Missing Money.

Carl Rode, employed as a house-boy at the Aveline, reported to the police today that he had been robbed of $13.85 in a room at the Monroe lodging house, on South Calhoun street, last night. He and a companion took a bed last night and he says when he went to sleep the money was in a purse in his vest pocket. When he got up this morning it was gone.

Another bed in the room was occupied by a saloon porter, who was afterward located by Patrolman Joe Golden, but he had no money when he was searched and there was no evidence against him.

CHINESE CHURCH CAUSE OF DISCUSSION IN CONFERENCE

Great Missionary Gathering is in Session in Shanghai.

Shanghai, April 26.—At the missionary conference today the reading of a paper on the "Chinese Church" caused an animated discussion, after which the conference adoped strongly worded resolutions favoring a union of the Protestant church missions in order to make their work more effective.

In the evening a large audience heard Rev. Arthur H. Smith, of the Pang Chuang mission of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, who spoke on missionary work.

The opening of the missionary conference yesterday in celebration of the centenary of the landing of Robert Morrison, the English missionary at Canton, was marked by the attendance of the largest body of missionaries ever witnessed in the far east.

The missionaries met in the splendid auditorium of the new Chinese Young Men's Christian association building, about 1,000 being present, including representatives of thirty missionary boards and of the laymen's missionary association and ministers and laymen from the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Holland, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Finland, Hawaii, Japan, the Philippines, China, Siam, India, Korea, Ceylon and the Malayan archipelago.

Noted Missionaries Preside.

Rev. Arthur H. Smith, of the Pang-Chung mission of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions, and Rev. J. C. Gibson, D. D., of the English Presbyterian mission at Swatow, acted as chairman, in the afternoon and evening respectively.

About 2,000 persons were present at the evening reception, when Viceroy Tuan Fang, of Tankin, was represented by Taotai Wong, who welcomed the members of the conference and assured them of his friendliness to missionaries.

A feature of the day's proceedings was the opening of the new hall erected in memory of the missionaries and others who lost their lives in the "boxer" uprising.

Say Mosquitoes Spread Malaria.

Important preconference meetings were held here April 23 and 24, among them being that of the Chinese Medical association, which was attended by eighty missionary physicians. Their observations confirm the theory that malaria is spread by mosquitoes. Emphasis was laid on the unity of the medical men in all missionary work.

The missionary delegates of the Baptists and Presbyterians and the Anglican bishops of China declared themselves in favor of a closer union of their respective churches in order to make their work more effective.

Action toward federating all the Presbyterian denominations in China was taken.

STOPS RUNNING TEAM.

Messenger Boy Figures In Sensational Runaway.

Harry Ryan, a boy employed as messenger at the Red Line, figured in a sensational runaway on West Berry street this morning. A farmer had left his team stand in front of the Randall Motor Car company, and was in one of the buildings attending to some business. The horses suddenly became frightened and started down Berry street at a furious pace. Ryan, who was coming out of the Arcade riding a bicycle, saw the team approaching and jumped from the wheel and caught one of them by the bridle and succeeded in stopping them. Owing to the number of people who are at the Calhoun street crossing this time of day very likely a serious accident may have been averted by the timely appearance of the boy.

WAGE RAISE FOR 30,000.

Fall River, Mass., April 26.—Unless unexpected development occurs, more than thirty thousand cotton mill operatives in this city will have their wages advanced on May 27 when the working agreement in force between the textile council and the Fall River Manufacturers' association expires. It is the general opinion the advance will be ten per cent above the present rate, and will affect all classes of operatives.

STARTLIN STORY OF PLOT TO SLAY

Wind Dispels the Clouds.

The day of the inaugural ceremonies opened cloudy, but by 8 o'clock the sun shone forth and a strong breeze from the southeast soon drove the cloud banks beyond the horizon, leaving a clear sky.

The breeze sweeping across Hampton Roads also tempered the heat, which had a tinge of midsummer in it by the time the president lauded on the exposition grounds. The unfinished streets were deep in dust, which made the grass covered parade from which the inaugural function was viewed by the populace a welcome refuge.

Tucker Begins Ceremony.

Hon. Henry St. George Tucker, president of the exposition, in an eloquent speech opened the ceremonies, speaking in part as follows:

Mr. President, Our Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen:—Standing upon an eminence of three centuries of achievements, the American republic pauses today to celebrate, in fitting manner, the ter-centennial of its birth on the banks of the tawny James. The steadiest head grows dizzy, the strongest nerve agitated, while the pulse of the lion-hearted assumes the motion of the trip-hammer in the retrospect of the marvelous progress of three hundred years. The origin of ancient Rome, Greece and of other countries that in their day have controlled the destinies of the world, are shrouded in mystery, or preserved in fable, by poetic fancy; and even more modern nations find it difficult to point with historic accuracy to the date of their birth. Even our own mother land, endeared to us by many ties, finds it difficult, in the incursions of the Norsemen, the piratical invasions of the Angles and Saxons, and the mystic origin of the ancient Briton, to determine either its paternity or the birthday of the kingdom. More fortunate than these, or any of them, is this American republic, not only in its knowledge of the date of its birth, but in the possession of the names and characters of those who first faced the dangers of the sea, and then the dangers of the savage and forests, in the founding of the greatest republic of modern times. And so we gather today in the presence of this distinguished company, representing not only our own country, but the mother country, and, with few exceptions, every civilized nation of the world, to celebrate the ter-centennial of the birth of America.

Brings a Two-Fold Joy.

This day brings with it a two-fold joy, in that it marks the ter-centennial of the birth, not only of the American republic, but also the birth of Virginia, the oldest American colony, both co-incident and simultaneous. By divine prescience, the infant republic was first hidden in the bulrushes of our Virginia Nile, and nurtured by its mother, Virginia, the daughter of the king, whom providence had placed in waiting on the banks of the river, that she might be the first to give to her offspring those impressions of infancy so necessary to high and noble character in maturity.

We greet you therefore this day, Mr. President, and honored representatives of the great powers of the earth, at the birthday party not only of the American republic, but of Virginia also—the first, the oldest of the American colonies.

When the federal convention was once on the eve of dissolution, it was the venerable Benjamin Franklin who gave utterance to those remarkable words: "God governs in the affairs of men, and if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without his notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without his aid?" Those of us who agree with Franklin do not believe that the birth of the nation on the soil of Virginia was accidental. For, from the inspired book, are we not taught that he who would attain the bliss of eternal life must be born again; and in our subsequent history, may we not see the analogy between man and a nation? For, if the first birth of our republic was at Jamestown on the 13th of May, 1607, will it be denied that the second birth necessary to its immortality, took place at Yorktown, on the soil of old Virginia, on the 19th of October, 1781?

Constellation of States.

At the table that is this day spread for you, the thirteen original colonies occupy the seats of honor, while their daughters and grand-daughters, in the constellation of states, vie with each other in the brilliancy of their garments and the patriotism of their sentiments; and the nations of the world, honoring America by the presence of their distinguished sons, lend an interest to the occasion as they contemplate with eager eye this happy reunion of all the peoples of America on the hearthstone of the mother of them all.

The men behind the guns, who have wrought this great work, have had the liberal patronage of the federal government, and the governments of the several states. All that education, science and skill could produce, with the limited means at their command, has been invoked for the completed work. The federal government stands facile princeps in its liberal benefactions, and each state in proportion to its means for its proper representation here today. In its formation and building, the points of the compass have been disregarded or lost, for here there is no North, no South, no East, no West; but we are each "as distinct as the billows, but one as the sea."

Tribute to Fitzhugh Lee.

President Tucker at this point paid a glowing tribute to the memory of the late General Fitzhugh Lee, whose interest, activity and patriotic sympathy had done so much in awakening public sentiment over the country to an appreciation of and an interest in the Jamestown exposition.

Then Mr. Tucker went into a review of the causes which led to the settlement of Jamestown, the development of Virginia, her part in the general colonial development of that part of North America now the United States, her place in the war for independence and the constitutional development of the nation. In conclusion he said:

I have attempted thus imperfectly to sketch the causes that led to the settlement at Jamestown, to enumerate the principles by which those who first sought this goodly country were moved; and to show how well their descendants have developed them in the broad fields of American life. My solemn conviction is that by just as much as we cling to those principles, and never relax our faith in them, by just that much will the future glory of our country be determined.

Material Advancement.

Our foreign and internal commerce, the number of bushels of wheat and of barrels of corn we produce, the output of our mines, and the product of our factories, as collated in the census returns at successive eras, inflame the imagination, lend a pleasing charm to our vanity, and tell the valued story of our material advancement.

But, Mr. President, these are but as "a sounding brass and tinkling cymbal" unless the spiritual, the idealistic, the patriotic sentiments of our people are stimulated and cherished. It has been your proud privilege to do much to turn the public mind toward high ideals, and we humbly trust that it may yet be your privilege to do much more for the cause of civil liberty. You have boldly challenged to battle those who, in your judgment, would curtail this ancient principle; the final outcome cannot be in doubt; an iron nerve, a dauntless courage—with which you are happily possessed—will be your support throughout the conflict. It was in the darkest days of our revolutionary period, when the cause of liberty seemed doomed, that Washington, Virginia's great son, declared: "Leave me but a banner to plant upon the mountains of West Augusta, and I will rally around me the men who will raise our bleeding country from the dust and set her free." The descendants of these men still abide on Virginia soil; you know the mettle of their pastures. As the successor of Washington, in your great office, if you feel that the cause of civil liberty today is endangered by domestic instead of foreign foes, let me invite you, standing on the sacred soil of Virginia, to which liberty is an indigenous plant and patriotism an evergreen, to plant the banner of liberty once more in the mountains of West Augusta, a country enriched with the best blood of Americans, north and south, and there rally around you her sons, whose men of might today are worthy of their sires, and with them raise your "bleeding country once again from the dust and set her free."

America can have no higher mission among the nations of the world than in the simple working out in their perfection of the great principles for which I plead this day; principles which received their first baptism in the waters of the James, and their last in the blood of patriots from every state in the union.

Lesson of the Day.

The lesson that this day teaches, and that it is intended to enforce, is that of honest introspection, that we may inquire how far our lives and our conduct have been controlled by these principles for which our fathers fought and died. Preserve them we must. To relax our devotion to them is fatal, and if, with firm resolve and reliance upon Almighty God for their maintenance, we set

"Our face to the field, swearing never to yield,
Or return like the Spartan in death on his shield,"

Then the folds of Old Glory shall triumphantly wave,
To light us to freedom and glory again.

My heart's desire and prayer to God is that when these gates, which we this day open, shall be closed in November next, and the fleets of the world which gracefully ride these waters, shall have turned their prows homeward, that all the nations of the earth here represented, with mutual respect and admiration increased and strengthened by their friendly intercourse, may be cemented by the ties of an everlasting friendship that shall encircle the earth in one continuous band of amity and peace; and that those of our own people who have gathered here from every part of these United States, for the purpose of kindling anew the fires of liberty in their hearts from these ancient altars, or with open hearts to renew the friendships of olden days, may with one heart and one voice joyfully unite in the aspiration of Massachusetts' great orator:

"Liberty and union, one and inseperable, now and forever."

ance which all of us share, and marked deep the lines along which we have developed. It was the men of English stock who did most in casting the mold into which our national character was run.

Let me furthermore greet all of you, the representatives of the people of continental Europe. From almost every nation of Europe we have drawn some part of our blood, some part of our traits. This mixture of blood has gone on from the beginning, and with it has gone on a kind of development unexampled among peoples of the stocks from which we spring; and hence today we differ sharply from, and yet in some ways are fundamentally akin to, all of the nations of Europe.

Again, let me bid you welcome, representatives of our sister republics of this continent. In the larger aspect, your interests and ours are identical. Your problems and ours are in large part the same; and as we strive to settle them, I pledge you herewith on the part of this nation the heariest friendship and good will.

To the New Old Orient.

Finally, let me say a special word of greeting to those representatives of the Asiatic nations who make up that newest East which is yet the most ancient East, the East of time immemorial. In particular, let me express a word of hearty welcome to the representative of the mighty island empire of Japan; that empire, which in learning from the West, has shown that it had so much, so very much, to teach the West in return.

To all of you here gathered I express my thanks for your coming, and I extend to you my earnest wishes for the welfare of your several nations. The world has moved so far that it is no longer necessary to believe that one nation can rise only by thrusting another down. All farsighted statesmen, all true patriots, now earnestly wish that the leading nations of mankind, as in their several ways they struggle

At the conclusion of his formal address President Tucker introduced the president of the United States,

President Admonishes Crowd.

President Roosevelt began his address at 12:06 o'clock. That he might be better seen and heard he mounted a table which raised him high above the heads of his audience. He was greatly concerned by the danger in the crowd to women and children. To discourage enthusiasm, he said at the outset of his address that he should ask the audience "to make the speech as much a monologue as possible." Speaking directly to the crowd which stretched across the parade grounds, the president at the top of his voice earnestly requested that the people re-

S.S.S. A CERTAIN SAFE TREATMENT

Even if mercury and potash could cure Contagious Blood Poison the condition in which these strong minerals leave the system would make the "cure worse than the disease." But they cannot cure the vile disorder; they can only cover up the symptoms for awhile or mask the disease in the system, but as soon as the treatment is left off the hideous symptoms return. Mercury and potash eat out the delicate lining of the stomach and bowels, produce chronic dyspepsia by drying up the gastric juices, cause the teeth to decay, and often completely break down the constitution, and where they are used in large quantities, the bones become affected, while the disease for which one has so long taken this destructive treatment has not been cured. Contagious Blood Poison is a disease it will not do to trifle with. It is a vile, dangerous and destructive disorder. When the blood becomes infected with its virus the mouth and throat ulcerate, hair and eyebrows come out, glands in the neck and groin swell, copper-colored spots appear on the flesh, and in severe cases sores break out on the body, the finger nails drop off and the sufferer is diseased from head to foot. S. S. S. is the only known antidote for Contagious Blood Poison—the one remedy that is able to get to the root of the disease and force out every particle of the poison so that there are never any signs of its return. It is purely vegetable, made entirely from roots, herbs and barks of known curative value. Instead of leaving bad after-effects as some medicines do, S. S. S. tones up every part of the system and puts every part of the body in perfect health. It will also remove any lingering effects of former mineral treatment while eradicating the poison from the circulation. Special book on the home treatment of this disease and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write.

BURGLAR'S STORY.

It Was a Case of Dog Eat Dog, and They Quit Even.

"I don't agree with that article of yours about honor among thieves," he said to the editor. "You know, I was once in the burglary business. Don't start. I've quit it now, paid dearly for it and turned over a new leaf. Let me tell you the story.

"Years ago I lived alone in a rented house, where I stored my plunder. I had any quantity of gold watches, jewelry and silverware there. No one—not even my 'pals'—knew of this house.

"Well, one night I went on a raid alone, and in a trunk in a room where a woman and two children were sleeping I found five gold watches and any quantity of silverware.

"'Have I struck a pawnbroker's shop?' was the question that naturally suggested itself.

"But I didn't waste any time in speculation, but hastened home with my haul.

"Arrived there, I discovered that my own house had been entered by one of my best friends in the profession (I know his work and recognized in the neatness of the job his fine professional hand) and looted of everything.

"The next day we met and compared notes. It turned out that I had been to his house and he to mine. You see, we had meeting places, but neither knew where the other lived.

"'Did you not know,' I asked him, 'that you were robbing one of the profession when you entered my house?'

"'I did,' he said, 'but I didn't think it was you, Ben. But didn't you know the same when you were in my house?'

"'Well,' I replied, 'I didn't stop to ask too many questions.'

"We exchanged valuables, shook hands and said 'Good day.'"—Atlanta Constitution.

SOLUTION OF A DIFFICULTY.

Scientist Explains Maintenance of Heat of the Sun.

Sir Robert Ball, professor of astronomy at Cambridge observatory, England, recently delivered an address on "The Solution of a Great Scientific Difficulty" in which he explained the maintenance of the heat of the sun during a period of many millions of years. He said the age of the sun appears to be very much greater than would be compatible with the supposition that its heat was derived only from contraction.

He said that in the process of the contraction of the sun from infinity to its present bulk the sun would yield its present amount of heat by contraction for only 9,520,000 years. But Professor Joly had shown it would require 100,000,000 years for the earth's water to turn from fresh to salt. Therefore, he concluded that there must be some source of energy in the sun much greater than that arising from contraction.

This source, he said, was found in the movement of corpuscles of matter at the velocity of light. The nebula, from which the sun contracted, contained these particles, a small quantity of which, such as radium, would produce a tremendous energy and heat.

TAFT IS NOT ALL OF IT.

That President Roosevelt, though he doubtless would much like to see William H. Taft his successsor in the white house, is not committed hard and fast to the presidential candidacy of his secretary of war has been made more or less clear to callers at the white house during the last few days. This fact is believed to have significant reference to the persistent silence of Mr. Taft on politics since his return from Cuba. There is among those close to the president a pretty well settled impression that he is not behind the Taft boom to the extent that he sees in the big secretary the only man available for the nomination. This is the opinion of W. R. Wilcox, postmaster at New York, after a conference at the executive mansion a day or two ago. Several other persons who have recently visited the white house have expressed the same opinion. All agree that the president is desirous not to be understood as trying to dictate the nomination of any man for the presidency.

"I do not think it can truthfully be said President Roosevelt is working for the nomination of Mr. Taft or any other one man," said Mr. Wilcox. "What the president desires, I believe, is the carrying on of his policies. These policies are being attacked in Ohio by Senator Foraker. As Secretary Taft will defend them, the president is naturally behind him, and as the attitude of Ohio to the presidency is involved in the matter it makes it appear, of course, that the president is helping the Taft boom.

"If some other man in some other part of the country should develop as a candidate who supports the Roosevelt policies I think it would plainly be shown that President Roosevelt is thinking of policies and not of individual men."

Four steamships reached New York Wednesday with 7,131 immigrants. The Pretoria of the Hamburg line from Germany brought 2,297; the Cunard line steamer Pannonia from Austrian and Italian ports brought 1,981; the Italian line steamer Virginia from Genoa and Naples brought 1,500 and the Zeeland of the Red Star line from Antwerp brought 1,350. The steamers Statendam of the Holland-American line from Rotterdam, the Anchor liner Ethiopia from Glasgow, the Gera of the North German-Lloyd from Bremen, the Germania from Naples and the new Italian liner Re d'Italia from Sicily came in Thursday with an enormous number of immigrants.

Of course if Fort Wayne should attempt to entertain the state Grand Army encampment on some sort of niggardly scale and the veterans who visited this city were to go home and report this as a mean-spirited, unpatriotic, soul-shriveled town with no pride and little else to admire there would be a howl and a great pointing to bill-boards and other advertising media to prove the contrary. If the needed funds for proper entertainment of the encampment are not forthcoming Fort Wayne will stack up against some bad repute.

Danville, Illinoy, party would like to have it understood that in this year of grace as well as for some time past a speaker of the house is considerable sight bigger than a vice president of the United States; likewise and moreover that there is no precedent for a speaker sidestepping to get out of the way of the ice wagon.

FREE LOVE DESTROYS COLONY.

Property of Socialistic Community Is Ordered Sold to Pay Debts.

Bellingham, Wash., April 26.—The adoption of free love by a portion of the members is given as the cause of the downfall of "Equality," a socialistic colony organized in 1897. For years the colony has been pointed to as a successful experiment in collective ownership and production. Judge Joyner, of the Skagit county court, yesterday issued an order that its property be sold to pay the debts. The property consists of 600 acres of land, sawmill, printing plant and twenty dwellings. The colony was established by a national organization known as the Brotherhood of the Co-Operative Commonwealth, of which many prominent socialists were members.

MAKE NO REPLY TO PRESIDENT.

Moyer and Haywood Refuse to Get Into Controversy.

Boise, Idaho, April 26.—Moyer and Haywood, the accused Western Federation men, on advice of counsel, decline to talk of the president's latest letter declaring them to be "undesirable citizens." The attorneys declare they cannot, in the interests of their clients, permit them to become involved with the president of the United States and his friends in a newspaper controversy. Already, counsel declares, has their case suffered from too much agitation, and they will not, either for themselves or their clients, make any statement regarding the president's utterances.

MOMMER DISCARDED HIS TRUSTY BLADE WHEN ARRESTED

He contracted a Jag That Thirsted for Gore—City Court.

Ed Mommer contracted a peculiar jag yesterday that created a thirst for gore and although he had no known grievance against John Affolder he was imbued with a desire to explore his interior and would probably have done so but for the fact that a small iron bar was called into action and routed the blood-thirsty jagster.

Affolder was putting up a horse at Stapleford's barn on East Columbia street when Mommer hove in sight and there were no words exchanged. Mommer began to slash and Affolder led several times for his top piece with the iron bar, but fell short. His resistance discouraged the attack, however, and the Mommer squadron retired in more or less disorder.

Patrolman Paul was sent around to investigate and found Mommer near the scene of battle. As the two passed through an alley on their way to police headquarters, Mommer discarded his trusty blade, but it was afterwards found. Several years ago he was major domo at the Madam Wing establishment on Chicago street, and in that connection made two or three appearances in the city court and did a turn or two in the county jail.

It is believed that his idea incubator is subject to lost motion and his case was continued until May 3 in order to have his mental condition investigated. He had the razor around several saloons yesterday and was willing to carve up most anybody that he thought would stand for it.

The Other Cases.

Jack Case promised to leave town in two hours and to stay away for five years. He was given the opportunity.

An affidavit was filed against the Pacific Express company by Edwin J. Germann, who says the company refused to deliver a package to his house, which is inside the corporate limits of the city.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup

Pleasant to take and does not gripe or nauseate

Cures Chronic Constipation, Stomach and Liver Trouble

Stimulation Without Irritation.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new laxative syrup combined with the delicious flavor of fruits, and is very pleasant to take. It will not gripe or sicken. It is much more pleasant and effective than Pills, Tablets and Saline Waters, as it does not derange the Stomach, or irritate the Kidneys, Liver or Bowels.

Constipation.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup will positively cure chronic constipation as it restores the natural action of the intestinal tract. Ordinary cathartics may give temporary relief but the stomach is upset and the bowels are irritated without any permanent benefit having been derived. The condition of the patient remains unchanged. The Stomach, Liver and Bowels have not been stimulated and in a few days a stronger purgative may have to be taken. This is why Pills and Aperient Waters never give permanent relief. Their violent action results in an unnatural movement of the bowels and it is necessary to keep taking them indefinitely.

Why ORINO is different.

ORINO Laxative Fruit syrup is the only preparation that really acts upon all of the digestive organs. Other preparations act upon the lower bowel only and do not touch the Liver. It can very readily be seen that a preparation that does not act upon all of the digestive organs can not cure Chronic Constipation, Torpid Liver, Indigestion, Sour Stomach, etc.

For Biliousness and Sick Headache.

Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup. It sweetens the stomach, aids digestion and acts as a gentle stimulant on the liver and bowels without irritating these organs.

Clears the Complexion.

ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup stimulates the liver and thoroughly cleanses the system and clears the complexion of pimples and blotches. It is the best laxative for women and children as it is mild and pleasant, and does not gripe or sicken. Refuse substitutes.

OUR GUARANTEE

Take ORINO Laxative Fruit Syrup and if you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

PURE FOOD LAWS ARE DEFIED.

Eastern Preservative Discovered In Use in Kansas.

Topeka, Kan., April 26.—Dr. S. J. Crumbine, secretary of the state board of health, announced yesterday that he had discovered in use here a preservative for meats, the manufacturers of which, he asserts, are openly defying the state and federal pure food laws. The preservative is made in the east, and chemical tests show that it contains charcoal and pure sulphur, which, when burned, form a sulphur dioxide gas that is absorbed by the meat and has the same effect as borax. The manufacturers in their circular say that the preservative makes it possible for butchers to evade the law, contending that the powder itself does not touch the meat.

Secretary Crumbine has notified all pure food inspectors in Kansas to warn butchers against the use of the preservative, and says he will submit the matter to Dr. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry at Washington.

EX-TRAMP REPAYS AFTER YEARS.

Chester, Pa., Woman Who Gave One Coat and Shirt Gets $100.

Chester, Pa., April 26.—Mrs. Lewis Rossiter, 213 Pennell street, has received a letter from Chicago inclosing five $20 bills and a note saying:

Mrs. Rossiter found a tramp at her door one day three years ago who asked aid. She gave him a coat, a shirt, a pair of socks, and 50 cents. She thinks the $100 came from the man.

SIDEWALK IMPROVEMENT MEETS POPULAR APPROVAL

No Remonstrances Against Resolutions—Board of Public Works.

That the movement on the part of the board of public works to improve the condition of the sidewalks in the central part of the city is a popular one is demonstrated by the fact that there was no opposition to the confirmation of the resolutions at the meeting of the board last night. There are a few citizens in the line of the new walks who have just constructed new ones and they asked to be excepted and as soon as the board stated that it was not the intention to work any hardships on any of the property owners there was no opposition.

In addition to the sidewalks, which have been outlined several times in this paper, a resolution was passed for a sewer in Taylor street, Nelson street and the connecting branches and a petition for a sewer in the territory between St. Mary's river and Broadway was referred to the civil engineer.

Plans were ordered for grading the north end of Barthold street and in answer to the petition of a big delegation the board promised to place a street light at Franklin avenue and Polk street. A petition for grading and sidewalks in Baker's addition was granted after some opposition had been withdrawn.

The market place was tendered to the G. A. R. for a reviewing stand during the encampment and a petition from the Central Union Telephone company to string wires in an alley south of Suttenfield street was taken under advisement.

SUCCESSFUL ADVERTISING.

The best method that can be suggested in the conducting of a successful advertising campaign is to prepare a series of copy occupying reasonable space and run regularly—every day—in rotation. It brings the producer and the consumer into constant contact with each other, and by alternating the copy, the consumer finds each day a different, forceful and really interesting argument of the "reasons why" he or she should purchase and employ the article or articles so advertised.

'Twould Be Terrible!

Pa—If ever anything happens to me, Gladwys, promise me that you will never think of going on the stage.

Kept a Diary.

Henry Arthur Jones, the English playwright, was giving the students of Yale an address on the drama.

"Your American vernacular is picturesque," he said, "and it should help your playwrights to build strong, racy plays, but neither vernacular nor anything else is of moment if perseverance is lacking.

"No playwright can succeed who is like a man I know. I said to this man one New Year's day:

"'Do you keep a diary, Philip?'

"'Yes,' he answered; 'I've kept one for the first two weeks in January for the last seven years.'"—Washington Star.

Long and Short of It.

Junior Partner — Did you see that short man who was inquiring for you?

Senior Partner—No. What kind of a looking chap was he?

Junior Partner—Oh, he was rather tall and—

Senior Partner—But you just said he was short.

Junior Partner—Well, I guess he was. At least he wanted me to stake him to a dollar until he could see you.—Detroit Tribune.

The Truth.

Miss Cutting—Awfully rude and inquisitive, isn't he?

Miss Passay—Excessively. He was trying to find out my age the other day. I just told him I was forty-eight. That settled him.

Miss Cutting—Yes. I guess it is best to be perfectly candid with that sort of fellow.—Catholic Standard and Times.

A Homemade Prescription.

The following prescription was handed to a New York druggist. It was evidently homemade:

½ pint of Mulchum Cod liver Oil
½ pint of the best Rio whiske
1 oz of Wintergreen Esences
2 oz of Gliserine

mix thorley and take a dersert spoonful twice a day.

—Judge.

Kicked the Wrong Suitor.

Miss Bear—Won't you come in, Mr. Rabbit?

Mr. Rabbit—No, thank you, Miss Bear. Your father kicked me out once. That's enough. I'm no pig.

Miss Bear—Oh, there's no danger today. The Porcupine called last night.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BLOOD-CLEANING TIME.

To make a splendid Blood Medicine, which every one should take at this time of year, mix: Fluid Extract Dandelion one half ounce, Compound Kargon one ounce, Compound syrup Sarsaparilla three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime.

A well-known local druggist states that these are all harmless ingredients, which any pharmacy can supply at nominal cost.

This simple mixture, though easily prepared, is said to strengthen the kidneys, forcing them to filter and strain from the blood all impure matter and acids which cause Rheumatism, Nervousness, Skin Eruptions, Sores, Boils and Pimples and other effects of Unclean Blood.

Now is the time to rid the system of disease and build up the full blood count of 95 per cent red corpuscles, which means perfect health.

Mix this yourself.

CAR HITS A SCHOOLBOY.

Little Charles Rauner Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury.

While on his way to school this morning, Charles Rauner, the little son of Isidor Rauner, of 2423 Lafayette street, ran directly in front of a street car at Calhoun and DeWald streets, shortly after 8 o'clock. Luckily the fender on the car prevented the lad from getting beneath the wheels, but he was rolled along the pavement for some distance before the car could be stopped. The little sufferer was hurried to the office of a surgeon, where it was ascertained that his injuries were not of a severe character, though he suffered from bruises and a portion of the skin had been rubbed from his left leg and his left hand. The boy pluckily declared he would proceed to school, and did so. He is about nine years of age and attends St. Patrick's school.

THE LION and THE MOUSE

The much heralded play, "The Lion and the Mouse," opened a three days' engagement at the Majestic last night to a big house. Why the play has aroused so much interest wherever it has been seen and what its power is was plainly evinced at the performance last night. Few plays have so many qualifications for success. Firstly and lastly it is intensely an American play, in which characters are people of today, showing the influence of money in its affray with justice, caricaturing the tendency of the foolish and snobbish to ape the airs and ways of foreigners who have nothing but name or title behind them, hinting at the corruption by money of the very seats of justice in the United States, displaying the hopelessness of the individual who is in the cluth of the monied power, and domination by the monied class, represented in the play by one man, John Burkett Ryder. The finer delineation is in the character of the chief actors of the play. On the one hand is the real American, Judge Rossmore, the man who can't be bought and who does not hesitate to denounce the wrong-doing of corporation or individual. That such a man should have a daughter who has inherited her father's sense of justice, his appreciation of honor and right, and withal his astute legal ability which enables her to match the millionaire with retorts that send him to his seat in dismay and bewilderment time and time again, is not unnatural. The dialogue is sparkling, brilliant, at times scathing. The action is bristling with interest every moment. No superfluous characters enter. None has aught to say that is not necessary. Humor is one of the wonderful elements of success in this play of Mr. Klein's, in spite of the seriousness which forms the warp of the story. Humor, but little comedy, such touches appearing only in the first act where an exceedingly uppish "cook lady" and a pert daughter of the "big man" of a little town momentarily divert the audience from the real issue that follows.

Not often does a Fort Wayne audience rouse itself to such a degree of enthusiastic applause as was exhibited at the close of the third act last evening. Apathy vanished; the indifferent theater-goer became alert and there was no question of the acting of Miss Lovett as Shirley being the inspiring motive that made repeated curtain calls until she appeared alone. While the climax of the play is not approached alone by Miss Lovett and the splendid work of Paul Everton as John Burkett Ryder was powerful in delivery and equally strong in its part in the play, the sentiment of men and women is touched by Shirley's refusal to enter the family of a man whose love of power and greed for money had crushed his sense of justice and stupefied every gentle emotion of his nature except his love for his son; and her denunciation of his cruelty and repudiation of his motives in asking her to marry his son rouses a thrill of admiration and touches the pride as well as the spirit of men and women alike. Miss Lovett approached her climax with great skill and displayed unexpected reserve power. Macey Harlan as Jeff Ryder, Ada Levick, Elsa Payne, John G. Robertson, Seymour Stratton, Dorothy Crane and George Barr were others of an excellent and able company.

"The Lion and the Mouse" is a play that everyone should see. It has a powerful moral tone dominating it; it is wonderfully interesting; it is finely acted, and it is representative of elements in the American national life that interests the indifferent, the careless and the thinking people.

PRESIDENT PROMOTED PEACE.

Materially Aided Consummation of Central America Treaty.

Washington, April 26.—To President Roosevelt has been given the credit for materially assisting in bringing about the consummation of the treaty of amity between Nicaragua and Salvador, as shown by the following cablegram to him from President Zelaya, of Nicaragua, received here today:

"Peace signed day before yesterday, Amapala. I thank your excellency for your great work towards achieving that happy result."

APPENDICITIS

Not at All Necessary to Operate in Many Cases.

Automobiles and appendicitis scare some people before they are hit.

Appendicitis is often caused by too much starch in the bowels. Starch is hard to digest and clogs up the digestive machinery—also tends to form cakes in the cecum. (That's the blind pouch at the entrance to the appendix).

A N. H. girl had appendicitis, but lived on milk for awhile—then Grape-Nuts and got well without an operation.

She says: "Five years ago while at school, I suffered terribly with constipation and indigestion." (Too much starch, white bread, potatoes, etc., which she did not digest.)

"Soon after I left school I had an attack of appendicitis and for thirteen weeks lived on milk and water. When I recovered enough to eat solid food there was nothing that would agree with me, until a friend recommended Grape-Nuts.

"When I began to eat Grape-Nuts I weighed 98 lbs., but I soon grew to 115 lbs. The distress after eating left me entirely and now I am like a new person."

(A little Grape-Nuts dissolved in hot water or milk would have been much better for this case than milk alone, for the starchy part of the wheat and barley is changed into a form of digestible sugar in making Grape-Nuts.) Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

FIRE NEAR EXPOSITION.

Wooden Hotels at Jamestown Are Destroyed.

Norfolk, Va., April 26.—Fire resulting from a leaky gasoline lamp destroyed several frame buildings on 104th street at Pine Beach just outside of the Jamestown exposition grounds today, among the burned buildings being three two-story hotels. These were all filled with people, but the guests had arisen early and there were no fatalities or serious accidents.

The services of the Jamestown exposition fire department saved adjoining property.

MANAGER SUSPENDED.

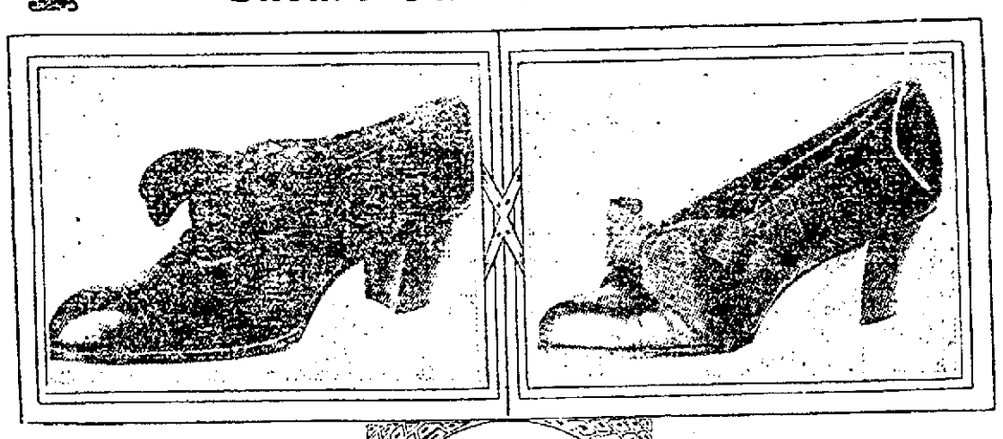
PLAIN OMELET.

Beat the yolk of two eggs until lemon colored and thick. Add two tablespoonfuls milk, a saltspoonful salt and pepper to season. Beat the whites stiff and dry and cut and fold them into the yolks, but do not stir or beat. Have a clean, smooth omelet pan well heated and buttered with a teaspoonful butter. Rub the sides of the pan until every bit of the surface has been greased. When hissing hot turn in the mixture and spread evenly. Lift at once to the side of the fire and cook carefully, slipping a limber knife blade under to keep it from burning in the middle. Put into the oven a moment to dry the top, then roll over toward the right; slip off on a hot platter and serve as quickly as possible. To vary the omelet, one tablespoonful chopped parsley added to the yolks when beating transforms it into a parsley omelet. A few tablespoonfuls grated corn makes a corn omelet; oysters parbolied and drained, cooked clams chopped fine or grated cheese spread over the omelet just before folding will give you an oyster, clam or cheese omelet. Other combinations that go well with an omelet are minced onion, cold boiled salmon, shredded; green peppers, minced fine; mushrooms, shrimps, minced ham or chicken, stewed tomatoes or raw sliced tomatoes.

Smart Summer Boots



Golden Brown Ties and Shoes Will Be Worn With All Colors.

The increasing popularity of brown in all shades for frocks has brought about novelties to match in footgear. Formerly a woman wore tan and the shade was considered correct for any kind of colored frock. Tan is still good form, but there is absolutely no excuse this season for hackabout shoes not matching almost perfectly where brown is used.

SMART WALKING TIPS AND JIGGS

This is due to the introduction of golden browns in shoes of all kinds. Boots, ties and pumps are graded and sorted to show the newest effects.

Such extremely short skirts are smart now for walking that it is more than ever important that footgear shall be as correct as care can make it. Pointed toes with long vamps remain the preferred shape, and pumps are as much in vogue as ever.

Washington, April 26.—The United States forest service has issued a circular saying that this country consumes every year between three and four times more wood than all of its forests grow in the meantime and that if this is continued the result will be a timber famine. COLE AND WILLIAMS GO TO ANOTHER DRAW

Moss Puts Glover Out and Bronson Stows Jack Ward Safely Away.

Freddie Cole, of Indianapolis, and George Williams, of Chicago, chalked up another draw at the end of ten rounds of as pretty fighting as any ring ever saw. It had been hoped by the admirers of both boys that the ten-round go between these two exceedingly clever and ready little men at the Princess rink last night would come to such issue as might afford a distinct judgment upon their respective merits as fighters. If there was a general shade of advantage it belonged to Cole, but there was no note of dissent from Referee Malachi Hogan's decision that the contest was a draw when the timekeeper, Dave Eckart, sounded the gong at the end of the tenth round. It was clear, however, during the three concluding rounds that Cole was slowly but steadily wearing Williams down and had two or three additional rounds been annexed to the bout the clever Indianapolis boy would have had the Chicago fighter where he could not have got away from the crossing over of Cole's vicious right hook.

Was a Good Bill Throughout.

The card presented by the St. Joe Athletic club last night was throughout a refreshment to men who like the boxing game and went out to the rink to look upon execution of the program. Two disappointments were handed out at the very beginning when Master of Ceremonies Dave C. Stout announced that Julius Stein, of Chicago, who was to have gone on with Ray Bronson, of Indianapolis, had fractured a bone in his right forearm and could not fight. Stein was here and had his sore spot with him. There was no one to doubt the statement of his condition for he is too well known as a ready and willing boy with any one with whom he can stack on anything like a fair chance. Jack Ward, of Chicago, known here of other times, went on with Bronson admittedly overweight and as a matter of fact topping the clever little Indianapolis lad by at least ten pounds. The second disappointment was spread on the minutes when Mr. Stout read a telegram from George Siler, who had been selected as official referee, stating that an injury to his ankle prevented him from being on his feet, an obvious disqualification for a referee. Balm for this, however, was at hand in the person of Malachi Hogan, of Chicago, one of the best known sporting authorities of the country and a capable referee, who went on as dispenser of judgments and blue ribbons. His work was quite as satisfactory as Siler's in a case could have been, and the crowd was just about as glad to see Malachi as it would have been to see George.

Crowd Was Big and Orderly.

The card last night drew the biggest crowd that has yet turned out to see a St. Joe club program pulled off and it was essentially orderly. A crowd of Indianapolis sports pressed their enthusiasm to the limit when Bronson, an Indianapolis boy, and Ward were on, but a word of warning from the master of ceremonies suppressed the racket and it did not recur until the last round of the windup.

Sam Moss, of Indianapolis, and Buddy Glover, of Chicago, went on for the curtain raiser at 8:45. Moss had his weight given as 122 pounds and Glover was announced as having refused to weigh in. He was at least a stone over weight and looked big enough to lie down on the Moss boy and hold him. The bout was fast from the start with the advantage held chiefly by Moss. In the second round Glover was floored once and took nine-tenths of the count. In the third he put Moss to grass with steamed-up hook, but did not much feaze the Hoosier lad. The fighting was fast all the time and not always scientific. But Moss was clearly Glover's master at the game and in the fifth round he put one over that gave Glover a season ticket to Wonderland and that was the end of it.

Bronson Defeats Ward.

When Ray Bronson and Jack Ward stepped stripped into the arena Ward looked big enough to "break" the Indianapolis fighter. The fastest milling probably ever seen on the St. Joe club's stage was introduced at the first tap of the gong. It was the mat for both of them in the first round, with Bronson showing superior skill along with his pretty punch and Ward displayed a right that had a finishing touch whenever and on whomsoever it could land. The first round written down, "Bronson easy." The second round had some variations, with Ward looking mighty dangerous. In the third it was give and take for half a round and then things happened. Bronson distressed Ward with a left hand jab to the stomach and then crossed his right to Ward's jaw. And that's all.

The Main Event.

There was some delay starting the main event by reason of the desire of both Cole and Williams to be subjected to physical examination by a physician. Dr. W. W. Barnett gave both boys a critical going over and pronounced them fit.

Williams went at Cole in the first round with a confidence that those who know him are quite sure he did not feel. For the first five rounds Williams did the leading and landed frequently. There was a deal of infighting under the Queensbury rules that prevailed, and the clinchers were active and the breaks always had something doing. After the sixth round Cole began to come to the front. He gradually extended himself until the ninth round when he displayed distinct superiority of strength, skill and punch. In the tenth Williams kept away and Cole carried it to him in large consignments. At the round's half Cole tried hard to get over that deadly right mitt, but Williams was wary and it did not land. The Chicago boy was visibly distressed and Cole was coming stronger all the time. Two more rounds would have sufficed, doubtless, to give the fans a distinct line on the two men. Malachi Hogan called it a draw and the big crowd was satisfied.

And so concluded the best card the St. Joe has put on.

JUDGE STOPS ROBBERY TRIAL.

Hears That Friends of Defendants Were Seen Conferring With Jurors.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 26.—Judge Marshall Brown in the criminal court, stopped the trial of Isadore Cutler and Walter Davis charged with highway robbery yesterday because he suspected some of the jurors had been approached by friends of the defendants.

The officers who are prosecuting the men reported to Judge Brown that they saw friends of the defendants talking to the jurors during the noon recess. The case immediately was postponed until next week, when a new panel of jurors will be summoned.

B. & O. TRAIN HITS PENNSY,

Engineer and Fireman Jump and No One Is Injured.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 26.—While westbound passenger train No. 5 on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was speeding along near Millville at 11:15 last night it struck the rear end of a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad. The engineer applied the emergency brakes and then he and the fireman jumped. They were uninjured. The sudden stop greatly alarmed the passengers, but beyond a serious shaking up they were uninjured.

It is said a misunderstanding of signals caused the collision.

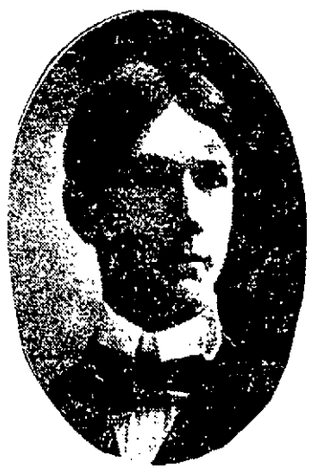
SHAMROCKS TO INITIATE SEASON IF WEATHER PERMITS

Garrett Will Furnish the Opposition in the First Contest.

The Fort Wayne Shamrocks will open the local base ball season at League park at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon provided the weather man is prepared to supply a little sunshine and warmth for the occasion and the fast semi-professional bunch from Garrett will supply the opposition. Great preparations have been made to give the people a run for the gate money and there is every reason to believe that the brand of the national pastime will be worth paying to see.



JACK SMITH,

Who Will Play Second Base for the Shamrocks This Season.

The locals will line up as follows: Hefter or Romary, catch; Ralling, Robbins or Redding, pitch; Beach, short; Erickson, right; Smith, second; Ehle, third; Cherry, first; Koons, center, and Quinn, left. The officers for the season are:

Manager—Mart Cleary.
Captain—Billy Cherry.
Assistant Captain—Koons.
Secretary—Billy Longfield.
Ticket Seller—Al Pevert.
Umpire—Jim Connell.

"Louie" Gage will be in uniform and will sub for the present, but he has under consideration offers from a number of professional teams and for that reason he has not been given a regular place in the lineup.

A Fine Organization.

Among the semi-professional teams of the country the Shamrocks enjoy a most enviable reputation because the organization has always been maintained on a plane above the ordinary ball club of its class and has insisted at all times that its players must conduct themselves as gentlemen on and off the field. This has created a demand for the team as an attraction.

The club has won games from Central, Western, Indiana and Interstate League professional teams and has made a lot of others go some to carry home the bacon. The reputation has been built up in ten years of hard work and the manager and men are proud of it.

This season the umpire will denote by raising his right arm when a strike has been called and when there has been a ball no movement will be made. The holiday dates this season include Decoration day, Fourth of July and Labor day. On the latter date the club will have boys' day on which all lads under sixteen will be admitted to the grounds free.

The average daily attendance of ladies at each game played by the team is 600 and none of them has ever been offended as the most orderly conduct has been preserved in the park at all times. In the ten years of its existence the team has graduates in the American, Central, Three-I, Wisconsin, Interstate, Michigan and Copper country league.

Improvements have been made at the park and everything is in first-class shape for the opening game. The stands have been thoroughly cleaned and the diamond and outfield are in good trim for fast ball.

SOME SECRETS OF SUCCESS.

Replies to a Man With Mania for Answering Advertisements.

(Hardware Reporter.)

A man with a mania for answering advertisements has had some interesting experiences. He learned that by sending $1 to a yankee he could get a cure for drunkards. And he did. It was to "take the pledge and keep it."

Then he sent 50 cents to find out how to raise turnips successfully. He found out: "Just take hold of the tops and lift."

Being young he wished to marry and sent thirty-four 1-cent stamps to a Chicago firm for information as to how to make an impression. When the answer came it read: "Sit down on a pan of dough."

Next advertisement he answered read: "How to double your money in six months." He was told to convert his money into bills, fold them and thus double his money.

Next he sent for twelve useful household articles and got a package of needles.

He was slow to learn, so he sent $1 to find out "how to get rich." "Work hard and never spend a cent." That stopped him.

But his brother wrote to find out how to write without pen and ink. He was told to use a lead pencil.

He paid $1 to learn how to live without work, and was told on a postal card: "Fish for easy marks as we do."

BIRDS AND FOWLS COLORED.

Pigeons, Canaries, Parrots and Even Chickens Are Dyed Nowadays.

[Saturday Evening Post.]

Rather novel is the notion of coloring birds artificially by feeding them with aniline dyes. The thing is actually being done nowadays with pigeons, canaries, parrots and even chickens. For this purpose the dyes are either mixed in the dough of ordinary bread before baking or else disguised in "cottage cheese"—either being a readily assimilated form of food. Baking takes away the bitter taste of such coal tar products and the crumbs are freely eaten.

In this way by the use of methyl-eosin, fawn-colored pigeons may be turned to a bright red, and the color is guaranteed "fast." Similarly blue is obtained by feeding the birds with methyl-violet. In the latter case the dye is offered to the young squabs in bread.

That colors acquired by feeding, however, are not necessarily fast is shown by what happens in a state of nature to the tropical birds known as "turacos," or banana eaters. On their dark violet wing feathers are patches of bright crimson, which soak out in water, so that in the rainy season these patches become pale pink or dirty gray. It is copper, derived from bananas, that produces the tint.

The red portions of the feathers when burned give a green flame, indicating the presence of copper. The red coloring matter easily dissolves in dilute ammonia and chemical analysis shows it to contain 7 per cent of pure metallic copper.

FROM CHILDLAND.

Wit and Humor Out of the Mouths of Little Ones.

I was dining with some friends of mine whom I had not seen for some time, and the little daughter of my host was seated at my left. During the meal I turned to her and asked her name. She blushed rosily and hung her head upon being addressed by a stranger.

Her papa said, "Can't you tell the gentleman your name?"

"Patience Wallace," the little one made reply.

"And how old are you?" I asked.

"Four years old at 11 p. m."

I have thought of this quaint reply and laughed at it many times since.

Louise was a blue eyed, golden haired child seeing her fourth summer. Her grandpa was a churchman and a Bible reader, so the child had been told who sends the flowers, the sunshine, the rains, etc.—God. As is the custom, during dry weather the grandpa would put the hose on and sprinkle the lawn and even the street, but at this particular time there had been many days of rain.

One morning her mother pushed up the shade of a window in their bedroom and said, "Oh, Louise, the sun is shining, and the day will be fine," whereupon Louise remarked in her slow, serious manner, "Nen Dod won't have his hose out today, mamma."

A few days ago a kindergarten teacher in this city was explaining to a class what it meant to be a "knight." The children listened with close attention while the teacher explained that "the knights must learn to suffer and not complain. They must learn to be tired and keep on working. They must learn to be hungry"— But before she could finish the sentence a four-year-old girl exclaimed contemptuously:

"Oh, Miss Edith, I learned that the first day I was born."

Ruth, aged three years, had been presented with a small silver knife and fork, of which she was proud. She used them at the table in such a way, however, as to bring constant reproof. One day when she persistently put the knife in her mouth in spite of her mother's reprimands she was told crossly that the knife would be taken from her and that no one would love her. Like a flash she replied, "If you loved me as I love you, mamma, no knife could cut our love in two."—Chicago Tribune.

The Kind He Liked.

Teddy's father had brought home some rare old cheese, and after hearing his praise of its strong points Teddy was manfully struggling to make way with a small piece of it.

Seeing the cheese still on his plate and Teddy's nose perceptibly elevated, his father said: "What is the matter, Ted? Don't you like that fine cheese?"

"Yes," answered Teddy, with the air of a connoisseur. "This cheese is very good, but I think I like just plain, common mouse cheese better."—Cleveland Leader.

KNEW NOT THE DIFFERENCE.

How New York Sport Thought He Shot a Panther.

It happened when I was guidin' a party of New York sports, and one of 'em, a young feller, was crazy to kill a panther, so we thought we'd fix things up an' give him some fun. A couple of the boys got the rig planned an' when night came we were all ready, with two candles set out in the woods and the blood of a deer makin' a good trail beyond where they stood.

After supper everybody was sittin' around the fire talkin' panther and the young feller was pretty keen about gettin' his oar in. All of a sudden, just behind the camp, somethin' let out a roarin', splittin' scream that made every man jump clean off the ground. Then somebody hollered, "Git a gun! Git a gun!" and another one yelled: "Look at his eyes; I kin see his eyes."

Well, sir, then the dogs started up an' the sport let blaze at the candles. Of course they went out, because a man was all ready and pulled the string when he fired. Things were pretty well stirred up, I kin tell you.

"Let them dogs loose! Let them dogs loose!" the young feller kept roarin', an' when we did an' they found the trail you ought to have seen them sports. They had it bad an' wanted to go right after the panther that minute.

Here Rube tittered and gave a concluding cough.

He never know the difference an' I'll bet he thinks he wounded that panther ter this day. He, he!—Forest and Stream.

Corey to Wed Miss Gilman in May.

New York, April 26.—Asserting that he speaks with full authority, Major James O. Harley has announced that the wedding of Miss Mabelle Gilman, a well known comic opera actress, to William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel corporation, has been set for May 7 and will take place in this city. Major Harley, who is a cousin of Miss Gilman, says that she will sail from France the latter part of this month.

Mr. Corey has not verified the announcement, but his close personal friends admit that they believe it to be correct.

Mr. Corey came prominently into public notice about eight years ago, about the same time that the theater going public first accepted Mabelle Gilman as a star. Mr. Corey, at that time president of the Carnegie Steel company, was made assistant to C. M. Schwab, then president of the United States Steel corporation. Shortly afterward he succeeded Schwab as president of the latter corporation and has since received a salary of $75,000 a year.

Miss Gilman was first raised to program prominence by being the feature in a musical review entitled, "The Rounders." Her most marked metropolitan success was in "The Mocking Bird." At that time the crown prince of Siam fell in love with her.

Mrs. Corey, after establishing a home at Reno, Nev., last July, obtained a divorce and a settlement of $3,000,000 for herself and children.

It is understood that the wedding of Mr. Corey and Miss Gilman will take place in the Fifth avenue residence which Mr. Corey leased about two weeks ago.

EARTHQUAKES FELT IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

Late Disturbances Were Predicted Month Ago by Prof. Milne.

New York, April 26.—That the earth is passing through a period of unusual instability has been manifested in the last few weeks by a series of earthquakes in almost every quarter of the globe. Spain, Mexico and the eastern coast of South America have been shaken in rapid succession, and a slight tremor has been felt at Charleston, which suffered from a disastrous earthquake a little more than two decades ago.

Notwithstanding the recent disasters in Mexico and the catastrophes of the last year, in which San Francisco, Valparaiso and Kingston, Jamaica, were destroyed by earthquakes, seismologists do not share in the popular apprehension and fear that a universal disaster may be imminent.

Prof. John Milne of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, predicted the earthquakes that have recently occurred more than a month ago. Records kept by his society show that there are about sixty world-shaking tremors each year. By this is meant shocks which destroy buildings near the center of disturbance and send out waves which are recorded by seismographs the world over.

Rockies May Feel Severe Shocks.

Up to the year 1902 the records that were kept by Count de Montessus, a famous French scientist, describe 159,784 earthquakes. The great majority of these shocks were in Asia, South America and southern Europe. Ralph S. Tarr, professor of dynamic geology and physical geography in Cornell university, takes an optimistic view of the present uneasiness of the globe in writing on the cause of earthquakes in the North American Review.

Professor Tarr shows by a comparison of records that only about one-twentieth the area of the earth is affected by earthquakes in any appreciable degree. "In the case of the United States," he says, "there are good reasons for believing that severe shocks are liable to occur in the Great Basin and Rocky mountain regions. East of the Rocky mountains shakings of a very minor character have been reported at many places, and in two or three localities there have been really vigorous shocks."

New York had a quite recent experience with an earth tremor that had its origin in the blowing up of an oil tank in Bayonne. Professor says of the Hell Gate explosion in discussing the cause of earth tremors:

"In general it may be said that any jar in the earth's crust will cause an earthquake. An explosion of dynamite starts vibrations which pass through the rocks as the waves of an earthquake do. For example, when the passage at Hell Gate was cleared away, some years ago, by a great explosion, the shock was measured on the seismographs at Washington in one direction and Boston in the other. A landslide causes an earthquake; the falling of the roof of a cavern is another cause, and the snapping of rocks under a light strain another. These are all minor causes. A much more important cause is volcanic action"

Well-Defined Earthquake Belts.

Professor Tarr shows that there are certain well-defined belts that run about and criss-cross the earth in which over 94 percent of the earthquakes occur. He shows however, that the regions outside these belts are not entirely immune. He has this to say on earthquakes in the United States:

"Eastern United States has, indeed, been visited by one earthquake which, so far as can be judged by the meagre descriptions handed down to us, must be classed as of the first rank. This earthquake commenced late in the year of 1811, devastated a part of the Mississippi valley south of the mouth of the Ohio, being strongest in and about New Madrid. The shaking was repeated at intervals for more than a year, and the first and most violent shock is said to have been felt at points as remote as the West Indies in one direction and New York in the other.

"The region was sparsely settled and the destruction of property was, therefore, slight; but the descriptions of the pioneers make it clear that, should such a shock now occur in the now well-settled region the destruction of life and property would be appalling. That the earthquake forces have not completely died out in this section is proved by the fact that other shocks of lesser strength have visited it since 1812."

In speaking of the earthquake belt, where the great majority of the earth tremors occur, Professor Tarr said:

"Of nearly 160,000 recorded earthquakes 94 per cent have ocurred in two narrow, well-defined bands forming great circles and crossing each other at two points. Not all of the belts are equally liable to earthquakes, but in them occur almost all the world shaking earthquakes.

These Are the Danger Zones.

"One of these belts, in which has occurred 53 per cent of all recorded shocks, is called by De Montessus the 'Mediterranean,' or 'Alpine-Caucasus-Himalayan' belt. It swings roughly east and west about the earth and includes the Mediterranean region, Asia Minor, the Caucasus, the Himalayas, the East Indies, Central America and the West Indies. Where the belt crosses the ocean little is known about its condition.

"The second belt, called by De Montessus the 'Circum Pacific,' or 'Andes-Japanese-Malayan,' belt, almost encircles the Pacific ocean. Passing along the Andes, it crosses the other belt in the Central American group, thence extends up the western coast of North America, passes across to Asia along the Aleutian chain, then down through Kamschatka, the Japanese islands and the Philippines and, crossing the Mediterranean belt in the East Indies, extends on to New Zealand. Forty-one per cent of all recorded shocks occurred in this belt.

"All the rest of the world—that is, a surface scores of times greater than the combined area of these two belts, is the seat of only six per cent of recorded shocks. As an indication that this small percentage is not the result of the failure to keep records it may be pointed out that the area where earthquakes are infrequent includes most of the well-settled parts of North and South America, Europe, Africa, Asia and Australia, while a very considerable portion of the two earthquake zones traverse sparsely settled portions of the earth."

INDEPENDENT OIL MEN ARE GRANTED BIG CONCESSION

Will Not Have to Pay $105 For Return of Empty Tank from West Coast

Cleveland, O., April 26.—The Cleveland Plain-Dealer today says:

The railroads have made a big concession to the independent oil men. The independents will no longer have to pay $105 for the return of an empty tank from the Pacific coast to a refinery east of the Missouri river, a rate that, it is said, has been a big factor in the success of the Standard Oil company is withdrawn.

Both moves are made in advance of interstate commerce comission hearing to be held at Washington May 21.

Notice to this effect has been received at the headquarters of the National Petroleum association in this city.

The readjustment of rates means that Standard Oil company loses an exclusive rate of 78½ cents a hundred from central freight and trunk line association territory to the western coast.

IRATE FARMER SHOOTS THIRTY-THREE BOYS AND GIRLS

Charivari Party Fired Into After a Treat to Ice Cream and Cake.

Albia, Ia., April 26.—Thirty-three boys and girls engaged in serenading a wedding at Lovillia, Wednesday night, were shot at by G. W. Wilson, the bride's father, who emptied a double barreled shotgun, charged with buckshot, into the crowd.

Wilson is under arrest on the charge of attempted murder. Three of his victims are seriously wounded. They are:

Arthur James, shot in the eye; not expected to recover.

Edward McFall, shot in the shoulder; condition serious, but will recover.

Edward Morrisey, shot in neck; in dangerous condition.

Gives Serenaders Ice Cream.

Wilson is a retired farmer, and well off. Wednesday evening his daughter, Grace, aged 18, was married to Earl Porter, aged 19.

Hardly had the wedding ceremony been pronounced than a crowd of forty boys and girls surrounded the house, beating on tin cans, ringing bells and blowing horns.

Wilson and the bride and groom took the charivari good naturedly, the old man going out to the serenaders and passing around ice cream and cake in generous quantities. The boys and girls then dispersed.

Come Back; Are Shot.

In the meantime the bride and groom had departed on their wedding trip and the other members of the family retired. An hour later the party returned again and began throwing stones and bricks at the house. Then a window was smashed.

Suddenly Wilson appeared at a window on the second floor with a shotgun and began firing into the crowd, which rapidly dispersed, the girls shrieking. Two of them fainted. Five were left lying on the ground when Wilson closed the window, the three wounded boys and the two girls who had fainted when they were shot.

The serenading party immediately returned when they saw what had happened, and the girls were revived by liberal applications of water. The three injured boys were taken to the home of a physician, where their wounds were dressed. James probably will be blind if he recovers.

Wilson to Fight Case.

Wilson was arrested yesterday and brought to Albia. When arraigned he pleaded not guilty. He claims that the shooting was accidental and in self-defense and that he did not intend to hit any one, but simply was trying to frighten the crowd away. He said that he feared that the boys would kill himself and his wife and that one of the bricks hurled at his house and crashed through a window and nearly killed his wife. He also claims that he heard members of the party make threats to do him up.

The bride and groom were hastily summoned to return, and yesterday Wilson and his son-in-law kept close guard of the Wilson home for fear of possible violence.

THE RAIN HINDERED.

Notwithstanding the inclement weather, a goodly audience was present at the West Creighton Avenue revival last night. An enjoyable service of scriptural quotations, choruses and prayers, followed by a short sermon on "The Division of the Word," sent the people home through the rain in cheerful mood. Rev. Legg will preach this evening on "The Good Confession," and "Lead, Kindly Light" will be given as a special number in pantomime by the Watterson sisters.

WILL GO TO JURY TODAY.

Washington, April 26.—The case of Binger Hermann, on trial for destroying public records, probably will go to the jury before adjournment of court today.

THE CALL OF THE BLOOD IN DEBILITY

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Will Prevent Most Cases and Has Cured Even Those That Stubbornly Resisted Ordinary Treatment.

There are few cases of general debility that could not have been prevented. There is no hidden cause for its presence nor is it sudden in its attack. Any person, who is overworked, or subject to any great worry or excitement, or undergoes some long-continued strain on the body, is liable to become debilitated unless the blood is kept pure and rich. Such unusual conditions call for more nourishment than the blood can supply and paleness, headaches, poor appetite, unrefreshing sleep, backaches, loss of spirits and a general tired-out feeling, which follow, are simply a call for a blood tonic and builder.

Mrs. Lena May Brooks, of Prairie Hall, Macon county, Ill., after several months of suffering finally found the right tonic in Dr Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For several months after the birth of my baby, I suffered terribly from a general breakdown in health. I was in bed for three months and after that was able to be up only a part of the time. I was sick all over, being pale, weak and thin. My appetite was gone and my head ached most of the time. Oftentimes there seemed to be a rush of blood to my head and I would faint away. I was very nervous and was not strong enough to do any work.

"As the treatment I was taking did not help me, I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which a friend said had helped her. After taking a few boxes, I began to get well rapidly. I continued using them for a time and am now as well and strong as ever in my life."

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in general debility lies in their direct response to the needs of the blood. Their work is to make new blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and health. They lay the foundation for permanent health in the future.

For the same reason these pills have cured anaemia, after-effects of the grip and fevers, rheumatism, indigestion, and nervousness, dizziness, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance and even partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia.

A valuable booklet, "Diseases of the Blood," containing fuller information about rheumatism and other diseases of the blood will be sent free upon request.

Dr Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

MR. CLOTHES BUYER

YOU are continually being advised to buy this, or that, or the other make of clothing, or to patronize this or that clothier.

The arguments are about the same for all this clothing, but the clothing isn't the same at all. That's because it is a lot easier to say things about clothes than it is to make them right. There is an amazing lot of cotton-mixed clothing being sold nowadays to people who buy by the surface looks. Even if you don't object to inferior quality you ought to object to having it sold to you as all wool.

The chief reason for advising you to buy Ely Meyer, Stein Bloch, Hirsh Wickwire and Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes is that these four firms do not make a garment of any kind that is not pure wool and hand-tailored.

When you buy one of these Suits, Topcoats, Raincoats or Spring Overcoats you know what you are getting. Our margin of profit is very small but our business shows that the people appreciate this class of goods.

PROFIT IN FOX HUNTING.

(Boston Herald.)

Fully 75,000 fox skins are sold out of Maine every year. Few of the sly animals are shot. Many are killed by the use of poisoned bait, while hundreds of others are killed in "drives," known as the "New Hampshire method."

It isn't sportsmanlike, for the fur hunters are not in the game for sport, but for cash. It's a business with them.

No accurate statistics are available as to the number of foxes captured in Maine in a year, but some time ago Charles E. Oak, of Caribou, then land agent, told before a committee of hearing that more than 50,000 fox skins were sold out of Aroostook county alone every year.

Outside of Aroostook county, where several men make a business of fox hunting, perhaps 25,000 pelts are taken in a year, making the total output of the state 75,000.

The price of good fox skins has reached the highest notch this winter, clean and even red pelts commanding from $4.50 to $5 each, as against $3.50 a year ago and something like $2.50 five years ago.

For silver greys, which are rare, and blacks, which are very rare, prices remain very much as in former years, though the rates have advanced somewhat and the market is much steadier since the close of the war between Japan and Russia, as nearly all these expensive skins are marketed in Russia.

One fox skin in 200 is from a "cross" fox and is valued at $30; one in 10,000 is a silver gray and is worth from $200 to $500, and perhaps one in 500,000 is a pure and radiant black, which may bring $800 or even $1,500, thus making the coat of the black fox the most valuable garment worn by any animal on top of the earth.

ALL conditions this season are decidedly in favor of the early purchaser. With mills and manufacturers crowded with more orders than they can make up in the next year, and with all kinds of desirable merchandise scarce and hard to get, with the prospects of still higher prices when present stocks are exhausted This Store with hardly an exception has no higher prices than last season. You pay no advance here.

To back up and make good these assertions we have prepared a varied and extensive display of all our fine and better models so you may judge for yourself and see the extent of high-class goods that are carried at this store.

Under ordinary conditions many of the better and finer goods are kept in boxes or wrapped up, etc., to keep them in clean, salable condition that you don't see or know about them, unless your attention is called to them and frequently we find people who have sent away for the very goods we have in stock under the impression that they could not be secured here. For these various reasons we extend an invitation to visit our store that you may get a better idea of the efforts that are continually being made here to please and satisfy our patron's wants intelligently, satisfactorily and economically. You are invited to look. You can buy if you wish.

MIGHTY DISPLAY OF WARSHIPS AT JAMESTOWN.

war vessels this morning almost an hour before the usual call for quarters is sounded aboard of man of war. As the Mayflower approached with rainbow flags aflutter, the American flagship boomed out the first guns of the presidential salute. In a flash the other American ships and the foreign vessels had manned their cannon and a roar of 21 guns fired from each vessel of the fleet sounded almost simultaneously.

Each War Craft Fired Salute.

The Mayflower pointed her way up the roads toward Norfolk, passing along the outer line of foreign ships "close aboard." As she cleared the first of these the visiting vessels opened fire with a new series of salutes, repeated in turn by every battleship and cruiser of the big fleet. The Mayflower's way had been kept clear for her since early morning by the little steam guard launches sent out from the ships to do picket duty. Darting here and there like little flashes of lightning, with shrill whistles screeching a warning to trespassing craft, the little policemen of the roads were a unique and interesting feature of pageant. Each foreign and American ship manned the rails as the president passed in review. The crews were drawn up in close order along the forward quarter decks and elevations of the superstructure and stood at attention as the Mayflower skirted each line.

British Cruiser Squadron.

The first of the British ships encountered was the Roxburgh, then the Hampshire and next the Argyll. All three are sister ships, the four piped flyers forming, with their flagship, the Good Hope, one of the many brilliant cruisers-squadrons of the English navy. President Roosevelt was especially interested in the Good Hope and as he passed the big cruiser close aboard, he exchanged personal salutes with Admiral Neville, who stood on the bridge.

Leaving the British ships astern, the Mayflower was greeted with the booming cannon of the German squadron, and President Roosevelt was treated to a genuine surprise. The Roon and the Bremen came into American waters wearing the dark gray coats of the German squadrons. As a mark of respect to the American ships, both cruisers appeared today in brand new coats of white paint, as spick and span as the United States vessels themselves.

The Roon fired the first of her 21 guns in honor of the president just as the echoes of the Good Hope's saluting cannon had died away.

Greeting of Austrian Ships.

The Austrian ships, the Sankt Georg and the Aspern, were the next of the foreign vessels to greet the president. Then came the Argentine cruiser Sarmiento. At the end of the foreign line were grouped several American cruisers and still further along were the Brooklyn and the Texas. The Montgomnah and the Cincinnati, all of which will serve as station ships during the exposition.

Turning down the long line of heavy American battleships President Roosevelt was again greeted with a [illegible] rear of cannon fire, the volumes of smoke being so dense at times [illegible] almost obscure the Mayflower. The Indiana was the first of the battleships to salute and far down the line the last of the cannonading came from the battleship Georgia. Completing the circuit of the ships, the Mayflower turned again toward Norfolk and steaming this time between the battleships and the foreign vessels came to her anchorage within the group of flagships.

President Receives Officers.

Immediately on anchoring the president received on board his yacht the flag officers of the Atlantic fleet.

The foreign flag and commanding officers were received on board from 9:30 to 10 o'clock and they and the flag officers of the Atlantic fleet then proceeded to the landing at the exposition grounds. The president in a small launch which danced and bobbed over the waves, followed them in a few minutes, his boat being guarded off either bow by two launches especially assigned for the honor and service of Admiral Evans.

Tonight the fleets will be illuminated with thousands of incandescent bulbs.

Hospitality Is Appreciated.

The officers of the visiting ships, especially those of the German cruisers Roon and Bremen, which have been here for several days, were frank today in expressing their appreciation of the hospitality shown to them by the American officers. Captain Von Rebeur Paschwitz, adjutant of Emperor William on board the Roon, was especially sent over to attend the naval review and opening ceremonies of the exposition and his presence is taken as an expression of the cordial feeling of the emperor for President Roosevelt.

A reception will be given on board the Roon on Sunday afternoon in honor of the American naval and army officers and their families. The German Commodore Kalalu Von Hoff and officers of the German ships will leave for Washington Sunday night to accept an invitation of the American naval officers to visit the capital city.

The British and German ships expect to remain in the Roads until May 5.

LIBEL SUIT IS FILED AGAINST GRAFT SLEUTH

Frisco Judge Declares Lawyer Heney Has Damaged His Character.

San Francisco, April 26.—Superior Judge Hebbard, of this city, who was denounced by Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney last night in an address to the students of Stanford university, appeared before Police Judge Weller today and swore to a complaint asking for Heney's arrest on the ground of criminal libel. Heney is quoted as saying that Hebbard had been repeatedly characterized as unfit and stigmatized as a disgrace to the legal profession.

POLICE CAPTAIN TESTIFIES.

Officer Mooney Still Star Witness in Frisco Police Graft.

San Francisco, April 26.—Police Captain John Mooney, who has made the sensational charges in his testimony before the grand jury was again a star witness at today's session of the grand jury. In addition, several of his patrolmen who have been doing plainclothes duty in the "Tenderloin" will be called to the stand.

The charges of wholesale graft in the police department that have been made by witnesses before the grand jury, have been qualified to some extent by members of the district attorneys office who declare that not all the men whose beats include the "Red Light" section of the city are guilty of charges of extortion and graft. It is pointed out by the various police officials that if the charges were true in but half the cases of patrolmen, corporals, sergeants and higher officers, income so derived would amount to nearly $2,000,000, and the price by each dive nearly $100 a week.

The trial of Abraham Ruef proceeded again today. Out of the list of seventy-five, sixty-nine veniremen had been subpoenaed and appeared in court today.

TO ESCORT JAPANESE WARRIOR.

San Francisco, April 26.—General MacArthur, commander of the Pacific division, with his wife and his aide, Lieut. W. L. Wirt, left for Seattle last night. There he will await the arrival of General Kuroki and staff from Japan and conduct them to the Jamestown exposition.

LADS WERE STRANDED.

Deputy Sheriffs Hartel and Hughes investigated two young men who have been camping for some time north of Huntertown and ascertained that they are stranded and waiting for a remittance from home. They had letters and papers to show they were all right. People in the neighborhood became alarmed at the prolonged stay of the pair.

FIVE DEAD: FIVE WILL DIE.

Fatal Explosion in Mine at Black Diamond.

Seattle, Wash., April 26.—In an explosion today in the Morgan Slope mine at Black Diamond four men were killed and five were fatally hurt. Fourteen others were severely injured.

The Morgan Slope mine is at Black Diamond, Wash., on the Columbia and Puget Sound railroad.

The only one of the dead thus far identified is Mike Bentley, recently from Colorado. Two cars were descending into the mine when the explosion occurred on the sixth level, 1,500 feet below the surface. It is supposed that a cave-in occurred last night, causing an accumulation of gas.

TAFT STARTS FOR OHIO.

Leaves Washington on Non-Political Speaking Tour.

Washington, April 26.—Secretary Taft left Washington this afternoon for Cincinnati where he will address a meeting of the Western Federation of Yale clubs tomorrow night. He will also make an address on the occasion of the dedication of the Young Men's Christian association building at Dayton, Ohio, Sunday afternoon and Monday evening he will address a meeting of the Business Men's clubs of Cincinnati, returning to this city Wednesday morning.

MOST EXPENSIVE OF HATS.

Sombrero Presented to Grant and One Owned in Pittsburg.

The most expensive hat in the world is a Mexican sombrero on exhibition in the national museum, Washington. It cost $1,500 in gold and was presented to General Grant while in Mexico in 1.82.

Samuel Sherard, of Pittsburg, Pa., probably has the costliest hat owned by an private individual. It cost $1,100 and is made of spun glass. It was made by an old Alsatian at Pittsburg. He invented a process for spinning and weaving glass, and the hat has considerable elasticity, being as hard to break as an ordinary Panama.

Mr. Sherard has owned this unique headpiece for ten years and occasionally wears it because in a good-natured moment he promised the inventor to do so.

While William H. Seward was secretary of state in Lincoln's cabinet some of his South American admirers sent him a Panama hat which cost $1,000. It was exhibited in a New York show window for a year or more.

Panama hats used to be frequently sold as high as $500 apiece, one New York merchant selling three hats at that price in a single day in the summer of 1867, but they are no longer on the market.

Panama hats are not made in Panama, but this name was given them because this city was formerly the greatest market for these goods.

The finest hats come from Payta and Guayaquil, Peru, and are made of the fiber of the pita or pineapple plant. This fiber is soft and pliable as silk, and some of the hats are made so fine that they can be folded up and put in the vest pocket.

We give you over 100 styles of Fancy Hose to select from at 25c a pair.

BOWSER WANTS FARM

Figures He Can Make Money Raising New Kind of Berry.

WIFE SHATTERS HIS DREAM.

Presents Facts and Figures to Show That It Would Be a Money Losing Scheme—He Is Sad at Heart at Outcome.

[Copyright, 1907, by C. H. Sutcliffe.]

"Now, then," said Mr. Bowser when dinner had been finished the other evening, "I want to have a square business talk with you. We have arrived at a crisis, and I want you to help me meet it."

Mrs. Bowser had seen from the moment he entered the house that he had something on his mind, but had been content to wait until he was ready to broach it.

"Well, what is it?" she asked.

"You must know that we are not rich and able to live on the interest of our money when I have to retire from business."

"Yes."

"And that there is not much show for a man who is plodding along."

"Well?"

"Well, the trouble with me has been that I have worked in the same old groove and have been afraid to take chances in any new line, or, rather,

"ONE HUNDRED ACRES IS ABOUT $3,000."

you have always stood ready to discourage me, and I have taken your advice. I could have made a big thing half a dozen times over if I had acted on my judgment, as most men do."

"In starting a chicken farm?" she queried, with a smile.

Why Chicken Plan Failed.

"Now, don't begin to grin and be sarcastic. I figured out that I could make ten thousand a year raising chickens for market and figured that I would lose two thousand. I am sure that I could have carried it through, but you raised such a row that I let it go. This is a different thing. I've got facts and figures to beat all the argument you can bring to bear, and I hereby announce to you that this house and lot are for sale and that I hope to have a place in the country within two months."

"Yes?" queried Mrs. Bowser. "Well, let us hear all about it."

"You shall, but let me warn you that upon the first appearance of sarcasm I shut right up and say no more. Did you ever hear of the Persian Double-Prolific strawberry?"

"Never."

"Well, here is a pamphlet telling all about it. The plant grows from two to three times as many berries as the American plant. The berries are twice as large, three times as sweet and sell for 3 cents more a quart. They are just being introduced into this country. The agent was in the office today. I turned him down at first, but when I came to figure with him I was astonished. I took back all I had said. Mrs. Bowser, look at me."

"I am looking."

Money to Be Made.

"There's more clear money to be made in Persian Double-Prolific strawberries than in a copper mine. You smile, but it won't take me ten minutes to convince you. Here we have it: Five hundred plants will cover an acre of ground. They spread just twice as much as the American plant. An acre of American strawberry plants will produce 400 quarts of strawberries. At 6 cents per quart that is $24. If it is a good season, they will run to $30 an acre. One hundred acres is about $3,000. It is the easiest kind of work—more like play than work—and you get your cash on the nail. Plant 100 acres of the Persian Double-Prolifics, and what do you get? From $5,000 to $6,000 off the same ground. The increased price you get makes you reasonably sure of $6,000. One is outdoors in the fresh air all the time, and one summer alone would do my back $1,000 worth of good."

"Have you anything the matter with your back?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Have I anything the matter with my back? Great Scott, woman, have I not been complaining of lumbago and rheumatism for the last five years? Anything the matter with my back! What ails you?"

Things to Be Considered.

"I don't remember to have heard you say anything, but let that go, and we will talk about the Double-Prolifics. You figure on a hundred acres, do you?"

"Not a rod less."

"And you want to be near a market?"

"Of course."

Miss Cosette Keegan, of Shawnee, Oklahoma, was operated upon in that city for appendicitis this week. Relatives of this city have heard favorable reports. Miss Keegan taught in a kindergarten department of the public schools here for sometime and has many friends, besides relatives in this city, who will be interested in her convalescence.

"Well, have you figured on the cost of the land?"

"I shall exchange our house and lot for a farm, of course."

"We'll figure, then, that you have exchanged even up. None of the live stock or farming implements go in with a farm. We must have a cow, a team of horses, a wagon, plow, drag and other things. Then we must have a hired man. You can figure on paying out $500 to begin with."

"There you go—trying to discourage me right on the start!" shouted Mr. Bowser as he rose up and began walking around.

"But how can you get along without these things? You are to put 100 acres into strawberries. Do you know how much work it is to prepare the land?"

Mr. Bowser stopped and looked at her blankly.

"First, what is the cost of the plants? It is given in the pamphlet here at $5 a hundred. That's $25 an acre or $2,500 for your hundred acres. Had you figured on that?"

Mr. Bowser began to turn pale, and the cat left the hearth rug and crawled under the piano.

Would Be Big Expense.

"And now about breaking up the land. There are 100 acres to plow, drag and enrich and lay off in beds. The ground has got to be carefully prepared. Have you figured on the cost of this?"

"Woman, what do you mean by such talk?" demanded Mr. Bowser in stern tones.

"Why, this is a business talk, and I am talking business. You can't expect your Persian Double-Prolifics are going to yield anything if you stack them away in the barn. They have got to be set out in rich and carefully prepared grounds. Let me see. To prepare those 100 acres will take two men and two teams at least a month. To set out the plants will take two men from two to three weeks. It says here that you must fertilize every plant. How many bags of that it will take no one can say. If it comes on dry weather, the plants must get watered in some way, or you will lose them. Have you thought of that?"

Mr. Bowser sat down, flushing red and white, and set his jaw and glared at her.

"Well your hundred acres of strawberries get along to the period when the berries begin to ripen. What about the pickers? You must have at least fifty women and children ready. They will have to be paid from 2 to 3 cents a quart. Strawberries must go to market in boxes. How many boxes, and what is the cost? You must send them to the depot and pay freight. They must go to a commission house, and have you figured on that commission? If the supply is light, you may get 10 cents a quart. If the market is glutted, you may get 5. Now, take your pencil, and we will get it all down to dollars and cents."

"We will do nothing of the kind," replied Mr. Bowser.

Figured Only on One Side.

"But you want to know just where you are going to stand, don't you? You see, you had figured only on the one side. The agent"—

"Never mind the agent, madam."

"But if you propose exchanging our house and lot"—

"Never mind the house and lot."

"But you said you wanted a business talk with me, and I am trying"—

"Never mind the business talk."

Mr. Bowser looked at her for a moment and then rose up and passed down the hall and put on overcoat and hat and banged the front door after him. It was dark, and it was cold, and the wind wailed as if the spirits of dead and gone murderers were spooking around. Three blocks down was a small park, and a single bench had been left for persons to sit on and shiver and ponder and think. He sat down and humped up his back and thought of the Persian Double-Prolifics, the hundred acres, Mrs. Bowser and the cat, and he moved not until Mrs. Bowser was in bed and asleep and a policeman came that way and punched him with the end of his club and said:

"Now, then, old man, you get a move on you and get home or I'll give you a lively trot to the station house!"

CITY BREVITIES.

Miss Ida Parrish was moved to the Lutheran hospital this morning, where she will undergo a surgical operation, the third one in a year.

Mrs. E. Zorbaugh, of South Broadway, is quite sick with the grip and a complication of ills.

BEST WAY TO WASH PAINT.

Is Not So Simple an Operation as Some Would Believe.

Washing paint is not quite so simple an operation as the venders of ready-mixed paints sometimes claim. Painted woodwork can generally be washed successfully with water containing a little ammonia, but painted wall surfaces, when finished in oil paint, have the last coat "flatted" by mixing it with turpentine.

As a flatted coat dries without gloss, it conceals the unevenness of the plastering, which would be shown at once by the irregular deflections from a shining surface, and is therefore popular with builders. But it is gritty and catches and retains much dirt in consequence, and it is very difficult to wash. If treated with soap and water in the ordinary way the wall, after the work is completed, will show glossy streaks. These are due to the partial drying of the soapy water on the surface, and in order to avoid them the water must be wiped off at once with a soft cloth before it has time to dry.

The proper way to wash such paint is to take a sponge in one hand and a soft cloth in the other and go over the wall, sponging and wiping alternately. Plain, "oil-finished" paint, or "egg-shell finish," which is all varnish, can be washed much more easily and successfully than a flatted coat; but even with these it is best not to allow soapy water to dry on the surface.

Billiards were invented in France in 1471.

JAMESTOWN SHOW NOW UNDER WAY

first beginning of what has since become this mighty republic. Three hundred years ago a handful of English adventurers, who had crossed the ocean in what we should now call cockle-boats, as clumsy as they were frail, landed in the great wooded wilderness, the Indian-haunted waste, which then stretched down to the water's edge along the entire Atlantic coast. They were not the first men of European race to settle in what is now the United States, for there were already Spanish settlements in Florida and on the headwaters of the Rio Grande; and the French, who at almost the same time were struggling up the St. Lawrence, were likewise destined to form permanent settlements on the Great Lakes and in the valley of the mighty Mississippi before the people of English stock went westward of the Alleghenies. Moreover, both the Dutch and the Swedes were shortly to found colonies between the two sets of English colonies, those that grew up around the Potomac and those that grew up on what is now the New England coast. Nevertheless, this landing at Jamestown possesses for us of the United States an altogether peculiar significance, and this without regard to our several origins. The men who landed at Jamestown and those who, thirteen years later landed at Plymouth, all of English stock, and their fellow-settlers who during the next few decades streamed in after them, were those who took the lead in shaping the life history of this people in the colonial and revolutionary days. It was they who bent into definite shape our nation while it was still young enough most easily, most readily, to take on the characteristics which were to become part of its permanent life habit.

A New Ethnic Type.

Yet let us remember that while this early English colonial stock has left deeper than all others upon our national life the mark of its strong twin individualities, the mark of the Cavalier and of the Puritan—nevertheless, this stock, not only from its environment but also from the presence with it of other stocks, almost from the beginning began to be differentiated strongly from any European people. As I have already said, about the time the first English settlers landed here, the Frenchman and the Spaniard, the Swede and the Dutchman, also came hither as permanent dwellers, who left their seed behind them to help shape and partially to inherit our national life. The German, the Irishman, and the Scotchman came later, but still in colonial times. Before the outbreak of the revolution the American people, not only because of their surroundings, physical and spiritual, but because of the mixture of blood that had already begun to take place, represented a new and distinct ethnic type. This type has never been fixed in blood. All through the colonial days new waves of immigration from time to time swept hither across the ocean, now from one country, now from another. The same thing has gone on ever since our birth as a nation; and for the last sixty years the tide of immigration has been at the full. The newcomers are soon absorbed into our eager national life, and are radically and profoundly changed thereby, the rapidity of their assimilation being marvelous. But each group of newcomers, as it adds its blood to the life, also changes it somewhat, and this change and growth and development have gone on steadily, generation by generation, throughout three centuries.

A Heartbreaking Task.

The pioneers of our people who first landed on these shores on that eventful day three centuries ago, had before them a task which during the early years was of heartbreaking danger and difficulty. The conquest of a new continent is from work. People who dwell in old civilizations and find that therein so much of humanity's lot is hard, are apt to complain against the conditions as being solely due to man and to speak as if life could be made easy and simple if there were but a virgin continent in which to work. It is true that the pioneer life was simpler, but it was certainly not easier. As a matter of fact, the first work of the pioneers in taking possession of a lonely wilderness is so rough, so hard, so dangerous that all but the strongest spirits fail. The early iron days of such a conquest search out alike the weak in body and the weak in soul. In the warfare against the rugged sternness of primeval Nature, only those can conquer who are themselves unconquerable. It is not until the first bitter years have passed that the life becomes easy enough to invite a mass of newcomers, and so great are the risk, hardship, and toil of the early years that there always exists a threat of lapsing back from civilization.

Overcame All Obstacles.

The history of the pioneers of Jamestown, of the founders of Virginia, illustrates the truth of all this. Famine and pestilence and war menaced the little band of daring men who had planted themselves alone on the edge of a frowning continent. Moreover, as men ever find, whether in the tiniest frontier community or in the vastest and most highly organized and complex civilized society, their worst foes were in their own bosoms. Dissension, distrust, the inability of some to work and the unwillingness of others, jealousy, arrogance and envy, folly and laziness—in short all the shortcomings with which we have to grapple now, were faced by these pioneers, and at moments threatened their whole enterprise with absolute ruin. It was sometime before the ground on which they had landed supported them, in spite of its potential fertility, and they looked across the sea for supplies. At one moment so hopeless did they become that the whole colony embarked, and was only saved from abandoning the country by the opportune arrival of help from abroad.

Were Rooted When Pilgrims Landed.

At last they took root in the land, and were already prospering when the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth. In a few years a great inflow of settlers began. Four of the present states of New England were founded. Virginia waxed apace. The Carolinas grew up to the south of it, and Maryland to the north of it. The Dutch colonies between, which had already absorbed the Swedish, were in their turn absorbed by the English. Pennsylvania was founded and, later still, Georgia. There were many wars with the Indians and with the dauntless captains whose banners bore the lilies of France. At last the British flag flew without a rival in all eastern North America. Then came the successful struggle for national independence.

For half a century after we became a separate nation there was comparatively little immigration to this country. Then the tide once again set hither, and has flowed in ever-increasing size until in each of the last three years a greater number of people came to these shores than had landed on them during the entire colonial period. Generation by generation these people have been absorbed into the national life. Generally their sons, almost always their grandsons, are indistinguishable from one another and from their fellow Americans descended from the colonial stock. For all alike the problems of our existence are fundamentally the same, and for all alike these problems change from generation to generation.

Conquest of the Continent.

In the colonial period, and for at least a century after its close, the conquest of the continent, the expansion of our people westward, to the Alleghenies, then to the Mississippi, then to the Pacific, was always one of the most important tasks, and sometimes the most important, in our national life. Behind the first settlers the conditions grew easier, and in the older-settled regions of all the colonies life speedily assumed much of comfort and something of luxury; and though generally it was on a much more democratic basis than life in the Old World, it was by no means democratic when judged by our modern standards; and here and there, as in the tide-water regions of Virginia, a genuine aristocracy grew and flourished. But the men who first broke ground in the virgin wilderness, whether on the Atlantic coast or in the interior, fought hard for mere life. In the early stages the frontiersman had to do battle with the savage, and when the savage was vanquished there remained the harder strain of war with the hostile forces of soil and climate, with flood, fever, and famine. There was sickness, and bitter weather; there were no roads; there was a complete lack of all but the very roughest and most absolute necessaries. Under such circumstances the men and women who made ready the continent for civilization were able themselves to spend but little time in doing aught but the rough work which was to make smooth the ways of their successors. In consequence observers whose insight was spoiled by lack of sympathy always found both the settlers and their lives unattractive and repellent. In Martin Chuzzlewit the description of America, culminating in the description of the frontier town of Eden, was true and lifelike from the standpoint of one content to look merely at the outer shell; and yet it was a community like Eden that gave birth to Abraham Lincoln; it was men such as were therein described from whose loins Andrew Jackson sprang.

Each Generation Has Its Task.

Hitherto each generation among us has had its allotted task, now heavier, now lighter. In the Revolutionary war the business was to achieve independence. Immediately afterwards there was an even more momentous task: that to achieve the national unity and the capacity for orderly development, without which our liberty, our independence, would have been a curse and not a blessing. In each of these two contests, while there were many great leaders from many different states, it is but fair to say that the foremost place was taken by the soldiers and the statesmen of Virginia; and to Virginia was reserved the honor of producing the hero of both movements, the hero of the war, and of the peace that made good the results of the war—George Washington; while the two great political tendencies of the time can be symbolized by the names of two other great Virginians—Jefferson and Marshall—from one of whom we inherit the abiding trust in the people which is the foundation stone of democracy, and from the other the power to develop on behalf of the people a coherent and powerful government, a genuine and representative nationality.

Second Great—The Civil War.

Two generations passed before the second great crisis of our history had to be faced. Then came the civil war, terrible and bitter in itself and in its aftermath, but a struggle from which the nation finally emerged united in fact as well as in name, united forever. Oh, my hearers, gone away the mists that once shrouded ours, my fellow countrymen, great indeed has been our good fortune; for as time brother from brother and made each look "as through a glass darkly" at the other, we can all feel the same pride in the valor, the devotion and the fealty toward the right, shown alike by the men who wore the blue and by the men who wore the gray. Rich and prosperous though we are as a people, the proudest heritage that each of us has, no matter where he may dwell, North or South, East or West, is the immaterial heritage of feeling, the right to claim as his own all the valor and all the steadfast devotion to duty shown by the men of both the great armies, of the soldiers whose leader was Grant and the soldiers whose leader was Lee. The men and the women of the civil war did their duty bravely and well in the days that were dark and terrible and splendid. We, their descendants, who pay proud homage to their memories, and glory in the feats of might of one side no less than of the other, need to keep steadily in mind that the homage which counts is the homage of heart and of hand, and not of the lips, the homage of deeds and not of words only. We, too, in our turn, must prove our truth by our endeavor. We must show ourselves worthy sons of the men of the mighty days by the way in which we meet the problems of our own time. We carry our heads high because our fathers did well in the years that tried men's souls; and we must in our turn so bear ourselves that the children who come after us may feel that we too have done our duty.

Remedy for War Is Preparation.

We can not afford to forget the maxim upon which Washington insisted, that the surest war to avert war is to be prepared to meet it. Nevertheless the duties that most concern us of this generation are not military, but social and industrial. Each community must always dread the evils which spring up as attendant upon the very qualities which give it success. We of this mighty western republic have to grapple with the dangers that spring from popular self-government tried on a scale incomparably vaster than ever before in the history of mankind, and from an abounding material prosperity greater also than anything which the world has hitherto seen.

As regards the first set of dangers, it behooves us to remember that men can never escape being governed. Either they must govern themselves or they must submit to being governed by others. If from lawlessness or fickleness, from folly or self-indulgence, they refuse to govern themselves, then most assuredly in the end they will have to be governed from the outside. They can prevent the need of government from without only by showing that they possess the power of government from within. A sovereign can not make excuses for his failures; a sovereign must accept the responsibility for the exercise of the power that inheres in him; and where, as is true in our republic, the people are sovereign, then the people must show a sober understanding and a sane and steadfast purpose if they are to preserve that orderly liberty upon which as a foundation every republic must rest.

Great Civic Evils.

In industrial matters our enormous prosperity has brought with it certain grave evils. It is our duty to try and cut out these evils without at the same time destroying our well-being itself. This is an era of combination alike in the world of capital and in the world of labor. Each kind of combination can do good, and yet each, however powerful, must be opposed when it does ill. At the moment the greatest problem before us is how to exercise such control over the business use of vast wealth, individual, but especially corporate, as will insure its not being used against the interests of the public, while yet permitting such ample legitimate profits as will encourage individual initiative. It is our business to put a stop to abuses and to prevent their recurrence, without showing a spirit of mere vindictiveness for what has been done in the past. In John Morley's brilliant sketch of Burke he lays especial stress upon the fact that Burke more than almost any other thinker or politician of his time realized the profound lesson that in politics we are concerned not with barren rights but with duties, not with abstract truth, but with practical morality. He especially eulogizes the way in which in his efforts for economic reform Burke combined unshakable resolution in pressing the reform with a profound temperateness of spirit which made him, while bent on the extirpation of the evil system, refuse to cherish an unreasoning and vindictive ill will toward the men who had benefited by it. Said Burke, "If I can not reform with equity, I will not reform at all. * * * (There is) a state to preserve as well as a state to reform."

No Mercy for Swindlers.

This is the exact spirit in which this country should move to the reform of abuses of corporate wealth. The wrongdoer, the man who swindles and cheats, whether on a big scale or a little one, shall receive at our hands mercy as scant as if he committed crimes of violence or brutality. We are unalterably determined to prevent wrongdoing in the future; we have no intention of trying to wreak such an indiscriminate vengeance for wrongs done in the past as would confound the innocent with the guilty. Our purpose is to build up rather than to tear down. We show ourselves the truest friends of property when we make it evident that we will not tolerate the abuses of property. We are steadily bent on preserving the institution of private property; we combat every tendency toward reducing the people to economic servitude; and we care not whether the tendency is due to a sinister agitation directed against all property, or whether it is due to the actions of those members of the predatory classes whose anti-social power is immeasurably increased because of the very fact that they possess wealth.

Spirit of the Fathers Must Be in Us.

Above all, we insist that while facing changed conditions and new problems, we must face them in the spirit which our forefathers showed when they founded and preserved this republic. The cornerstone of the republic lies in our treating each man on his worth as a man, paying no heed to his creed, his birthplace, or his occupation, asking not whether he is rich or poor, whether he labors with head or hand; asking only whether he acts decently and honorably in the various relations of his life, whether he behaves well to his family, to his neighbors, to the state. We base our regard for each man on the essentials and not the accidents. We judge him not by his profession, but by his deeds; by his conduct, not by what he has acquired of this world's goods. Other republics have fallen, because the citizens gradually grew to consider the interests of a class before the interests of the whole; for when such was the case it mattered little whether it was the poor who plundered the rich or the rich who exploited the poor; in either event the end of the republic was at hand. We are resolute in our purpose not to fall into such a pit. This great republic of ours shall never become the government of a plutocracy, and it shall never become the government of a mob. God willing, it shall remain what our fathers who founded it meant it to be—a government in which each man stands on his worth as a man, where each is given the largest personal liberty consistent with securing the well-being of the whole, and where, so far as in us lies, we strive continually to secure for each man such equality of opportunity that in the strife of life he may have a fair chance to show the stuff that is in him. We are proud of our schools and of the trained intelligence they give our children the opportunity to acquire. But what we care for most is the character of the average man; for we believe that if the average of character in the individual citizen is sufficiently high, if he possesses those qualities which make him worthy of respect in his family life and in his work outside, as well as the qualities which fit him for success in the hard struggle of actual existence—that if such is the character of our individual citizenship, there is literally no height of triumph unattainable in this vast experiment of government by, of, and for a free people.

BARGAINS GALORE.

How the Husband Attempted to Teach His Wife a Little Lesson.

The married man looked from his paper across the table at his wife, who was busy sewing. He coughed to attract her attention. "My dear," he said, "here's a gasoline engine for sale at a sacrifice."

"My goodness!" said his wife. "What do we want with a gasoline engine? You don't mean an automobile, do you?"

"Of course not."

"There are so many new names for them."

"This is not an automobile," continued the man. "It's a gasoline engine, a two horse power engine, one of the best makes, and in good order. I think I must look it up."

"But what's the use of it? We don't want"—

"We don't now, I know, but we might at any time, almost. It has lots of uses. We could use it to saw wood or pump water. If we went to live in a suburb where there was no water supply, we could dig a well and pump water all over the house. One-third the cost, it says."

"But it seems to me"—

The man turned to his paper and run his finger down the column.

"'Piano for sale,'" he read. "'Owner must leave city on account of health. Paid $500 two months ago. Will take $60 cash.' How would you like to go over with me to look at it, my dear?"

"But we have one piano."

"We haven't had a new one for over a year," said the man, with some heat, "and we only paid $300 for it when it was new. Did you understand I could get it for $60?"

"It can't be any good at that price, and even if it was"—

"Circus men, attention!" read the man. "A fine, healthy male polar bear five years old can be obtained for less than the cost of his transportation from Spitsbergen. Comparatively good temper and acclimated. A bargain."

"William!" exclaimed the wife, with a bewildered air.

"We could make a rug of him if we could get him cheap enough. You know we've been needing a rug for the library.

"Here's a concrete making machine, I see, also a bargain, and, moreover, a delicatessen store and"—

"Are you out of your mind?"

"No, Bruddah Simpson, Providence done sent dem hornets."

"What a marvelous strain that is!" said the musical genius.

"Yes," said the unappreciative, "I, too, feel it."—Harvard Lampoon.

Spring in Cactus Center.

The sun shines on the desert in a dazzlin' flood of white,
And the stars appear much nearer in the calm and balmy night;
The greasers are a-noddin' 'gainst the warm adobe walls,
And you'll find a bunch, contented, where each bit of sunshine falls.

The bronchos' heads are droopin' as they stand up to the rack,
And each burro is a-rollin' fer to git rid of its pack;
Every squaw that comes a-tradin' is asleep on her cayuse,
And the hull southwest is sayin', "Spring is here, so what's the use?"

From the town's edge rolls the desert, like a magic, painted sea,
And across it voices whisper: "Mount, you puncher. Ride—be free!"
But I merely roll another, and I doze and smoke and doze,
'Cause old Cactus in the springtime is hypnotic, goodness knows!
—Denver Republican.

An example of the efficiency of agricultural colleges is afforded at Fort Collins, Col., where $4,000 was paid out last year to the students for working at the school.

The late Sir Walter Besant, 10 years ago, estimated that there were 50 novelists in England who earned upward of $5,000 a year. There are now probably nearer 150.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., April 26.—The continued absence of rain in Kansas exerted a marked influence on the wheat market today. July opened ½c to ¾c higher at 81⅛c to 82⅛c and sold at 82¼@82⅝c with the trading very active and the tone strong. Further bug damage claims from Kansas were a contributory influence in the strength. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 553 cars against 476 last week and 323 cars a year ago.

The market quickly became active and very strong and although there was considerable realizing on the advance July wheat bounded up to 83⅜@83½c and closed excited and strong 1⅞@2c over yesterday at 82¼@82⅝c.

There was a large general trade in corn but improved weather conditions for seeding partially offset the strength of wheat. July opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 48⅜@48¾c to 49¼c and sold at 49⅛c. Local receipts were 118 cars.

The wheat strength was but little reflected in corn and the close was comparatively easy with July ⅛@¼c up at 49¼@49⅝c.

The oats market was active and strong in sympathy with other grains and on small receipts from the southwest. July opened a shade to ⅜@½c higher at 41½c to 41⅝@41¾c and advanced early to 41⅞@42⅛c.

Provisions were dull but the tone was firm in sympathy with corn and hogs. July pork opened 12½c higher at $15.87½. Lard was 7½c higher at $8.77½, and ribs was 10c improved at $8.75.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, April 26.—There were hardly sufficient operations in the first five minutes in the dealings in stocks to define the tone of the market. Prices drifted sluggishly in either direction on nominal transactions.

An inquiry for half a dozen stocks attracted the attention of the room element and developed a following which put the list up considerably. Reading, Union Pacific and Smelting were in the best demand. Business was fitful in character and restricted to the few speculatives favorites. Reading and Smelting gained 1½, Union Pacific and Brooklyn Transit 1¼ and Northern Pacific and Northwestern 1. Prices fell back before the hour expired.

The trading was extremely apathetic, but prices were held near the top level. Of usually inactive stocks Northwestern preferred sold at an advance of 8. Lake Erie & Western preferred 2½, American Ice 1½ and Republic Steel preferred 1. Bonds were firm.

A recession in prices occurred but the market hardened again before the forenoon advances were entirely wiped out. Reading and Union Pacific gave way a point from the highest, but improved readily when selling stopped. Erie first preferred sold a point higher and Detroit United Railway 5¼ lower.

Business became progressively smaller until at intervals the ticker was silent for minutes at a stretch. Many of the traders quit business for the day and went to the races. Consolidated Gas and Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie preferred advanced 1 and 2 points respectively, while General Electric and Pressed Steel Car fell 1 and American Can preferred 1½.

The market closed easy and very dull. Prices turned downward with the growing strength in the wheat market and losses were substituted for the earlier gains. Atchison, Great Northern preferred, Pacific Mail, Pressed Steel Car, St. Paul and Amalgamated Copper fell 1 to 1½. Northern Pacific 1¾. Virginia Iron 2 and Wisconsin Central 2½. Atchison preferred rose 1¾.

O. R. C. DANCE PLEASANT AFFAIR

The twenty-third joint reception and dance of the O. R. C. and the Ladies' Auxiliary at Hanker's hall last evening was all that could be desired in a social and financial way, being equal in every sense to the brilliant affairs of its kind which preceded it. Koontz, Mrs. W. J. Reidmiller and James Lordier and Mrs. N. E. Vandeford and W. H. Link. At the close of the games, the floor was cleared and the dance program was put on. The grand march was led by Conductor and Mrs. Charles Matott, with Conductor and Mrs. Geo. Bonter second couple. The committee is composed of L. S. Nold, chairman; P. T. Strieder, Joseph Schwartzkopf, E. K. Allen and Charles Breuner. It is said that they will favor Wawasee as the excursion point, though this matter is not decided, of course. BIG ENGINE COMING HERE.

Local Pennsylvania officials have information that the big engine, No. 7067, described in these columns a week or two ago, will soon be turned over to them for a series of tests in hauling trains over the Western division. WHY BE WITHOUT MONEY

When you can get it for the asking? We loan to anyone without having some one else sign a note with you. We only ask you to pay it back a little at a time each week or month as we may agree. Some people are backward about calling the first time. Don't let that worry you. We have a private office where you can talk it over whether you borrow or not, and everything is private and confidential.

If you have never dealt with us it will pay you to call. You will like our methods as they are adapted to help you combine your debts and pay them all in one place. We offer an easy, convenient way to get out of debt.

WE TREAT YOU RIGHT AFTER YOU GET A LOAN AS WELL AS BEFORE.

$5.00 to $100 or almost any amount can be borrowed on your furniture, piano, horses, wagons and buggies, etc. All property is left in your possession, nothing moved. You only pay for the length of time you have the money. Interest stops when loan is paid.

DELICATE CHILDREN

Advice to Fort Wayne Mothers Who Have Delicate Children.

If all fathers and mothers in Fort Wayne only knew what a wonderful medicine Vinol is there would be fewer sickly, delicate children on our streets.

Rapidly growing children need a great deal of vitality. They grow fast, play hard and work too hard at school and many such children are tired, thin, pale and worn when they ought to be robust and rosy.

Every run-down, growing child in Fort Wayne should take Vinol, the delicious cod liver preparation without oil. It requires almost no digestion at all and cannot upset delicate, weakened stomachs as do old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions. Vinol also contains peptonate of iron.

It strengthens the digestive organs, makes new vitality, sound flesh and muscle tissue, strong bone structure and pure, rich, red blood. Vinol fills out hollow cheeks and makes thin little arms and legs plump and round.

Vinol cannot be recommended too highly for puny, weak and ailing children, to build up the run-down, overworked, tired and debilitated, or to give renewed vitality to the aged, and money will be cheerfully refunded in every case where it fails. Meyer Brothers Co., druggists. Two big stores.

NOTE.—While we are sole agents for Vinol in Fort Wayne, it is now for sale at the leading drug store in nearly every town and city in the country. Look for the Vinol agency in your town.

Something New

Steel China

a New

Kitchen and Table WARE.

Attractive as China,
Durable as Steel.

Something you have never seen.

The time was when housekeepers considered anything possessing the merits of durability and cleanliness as "good enough for the kitchen." But nowadays something more is required—attractiveness has become an essential point. In the preparation of dainty dishes, and even in the general routine of kitchen work women like dainty pretty utensils.

This "Steel China" is a happy combination of all these requirements. In explanation, it is an imported high grade enameled ware. Extra heavy steel frames are covered inside and out with FOUR coats of white enamel, shaded into a delicate blue, and decorated with floral tracings. We are exclusive agents for this ware and have it in all the needed utensils for kitchen use.
